£200 ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN STOLEN.

At the City Commission yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gordon, Frances Kinsella was tried on a charge of stealing £200 from Mrs. Mary Ward, of Catherine street.

Mr Dudley White, K.C., and Mr. Cusack (instructed by the Chief Crown Solicitor) conducted the prosecution.

Mrs. Ward, in her evidence, stated that her husband was a soldier in the Royal Irish Fusiliers, and was at present serving in India. He had made money in the South African War, and had given her £50 and other sums. She kept two lodging houses and a huckster's shop, and was receiving at present £1 6/6 "ring money" from the Government in respect of her husband and son. In August last she had £200 in a bag concealed in a bed tick. The accused had been lodging in the house for about three weeks. Witness sent the accused to clean up the bedroom, and after that she missed the money, which she had been hoarding up for the past fifteen or twenty years.

Mary Kinsella, mother-in-law of the accused, stated that on a day towards the end of August she went about with the accused to nine public-houses, and spent money freely. The accused asked her not to tell Mary Ward that she was spending money.

The prisoner, who was not professionally assisted, said that the money she spent was her own, which she had received about that time from the War Office in respect of her husband's service.

The jury found the prisoner not guilty, and she was discharged.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Alderman Delahunt proposed the adoption of the report of the Finance Committee, which showed that the accounts stood as follows:—Ordinary account, £9,250 4s. 7d.; loans account, £216 5s. 3d. After meeting these accounts there remained a credit balance of £559 4s. 7d. to ordinary account, and a credit balance of £1,001 8s. 2d. to loans account. The Dublin Corporation had paid £7,000 on foot of the third quarter's instalment of estimate and demand to cover the period to 31st December. The interest on credit balances for the last half-year amounted to £144 14s.

BAKER'S WAGES.

A notice of motion in the name of Mr. John Lawlor to increase the salary of the baker at Portrane Asylum to £3 5s. a week was ruled out of order as being ultra vires.

BACON CONTRACT.

Dr. Donelan, Resident Medical Superintendent, reported that the contract for bacon was for the best U.S.A. bacon. He purchased from two firms samples of bacon contracted for. In regard to the food value he was of opinion that the bacon supplied was 15 per cent. less than the samples procured for the purpose of comparison, and in his opinion the terms of the contract were not being adhered to.

It was decided that the attention of the contractor be called to the matter.

IRISH GAME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

THE DEPUTATION TO MR. DUKE.

The Executive Committee of the Irish Game Protection Association met on Wednesday at their offices, 110 Grafton street, Dublin. Mr. Edward White presided, and there were also present:—Lord Castlemaine, Sir William H. Mahon, Bart.; Colonel C. D. Guinness, Major J. A. Aylmer, D.L.; Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C.; Mr. Willoughby J. Bond, Mr. J. Mackay Wilson, D.L.; Dr. R. R. Leeper, Mr. W. H. F. Verschoyle, and the Secretary.

The Chairman gave a detailed report of the recent deputation received by the Chief Secretary, Mr. H. E. Duke, K.C., M.P., from the Association, in connection with the Game Laws, and particularly with regard to the necessity for the Excise carrying out the duties entrusted to them in the enforcement of the laws requiring persons carrying guns and killing game to be duly licensed.

Correspondence was read with the representatives of tenant-purchasers who have acquired the sporting rights of their farms, and desire to combine for the preservation and letting of the shootings. The Committee, in continuation of the Association's policy, directed that every assistance towards that end is to be given, all the documents necessary for that purpose, with legal instructions, being supplied to applicants free of charge.

The Secretary reported on applications received for special inspectors in Counties Galway, Wexford, Dublin and Kildare, which had been acceded to. The Committee then dealt with general correspondence, and a considerable number of offences against the Game Laws reported for prosecution. Several prosecutions were ordered, and the offenders to be reported to the Excise authorities and the Royal Irish Constabulary in their respective cases.

PORT AND DOCKS BOARD.

SMALLER COAL IMPORTS.

Mr. Wm. Crowe (Chairman) presided at the weekly meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday. There also attended—Alderman J. Moran (Vice-Chairman), the Lord Mayor, Sir J. Murphy, Bart., D.L.; Messrs. T. M. O'Beirne, R. K. Gamble, F. H. Hall, T. R. McCullagh, W. Wallace, M. Goodbody, G. Byrne, W. Scott, D. Barry, H. G. Burgess, W. H. Litchfield, S. S. McCormick, W. Baird, J. Hollwey, W. Hewat, and W. J. Dollar.

The return showed that 13,450 tons were dredged last week, as against 28,576 tons in the corresponding week of last year, when 10,751 tons were dredged for the improvement of the harbour, against nil last week.

The Clerk read a letter from Mr. O'Beirne, stating that he intended to make a statement in reply to that made by Mr. Goodbody a fortnight ago, and intimating that any reference of it to a special committee would be unfair to him as a public representative.

The Chairman said that last week an order was made that discussion on Mr. Goodbody's statement in reference to the application by the Dublin Dockyard Company for more land should be postponed until the Special Committee, which meets to-day (Friday), should be reported. He thought Mr. O'Beirne was entitled to reply to the statement then.

Mr. O'Beirne—After the war! He asked if it was open for a member to go behind his back and make an attack upon him.

Mr. Goodbody—I never attacked you.

The Chairman refused to depart from the order of the Board made last week, postponing discussion till the Special Committee had reported.

In reply to Mr. O'Beirne, the Clerk read a statement that during September last 15,161 tons of coal had entered the Custom House Dock, as compared with 19,860 tons in September last.

RUSSIAN BUDGET.

STRIKING RESULT OF TEMPERANCE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PETROGRAD, THURSDAY.

The Budget for 1917, just submitted to the Duma and the Council of the Empire, has been framed with a view to the possibility of the war lasting for the whole of the financial year. The revenue and expenditure balance at a total sum of 4,078,000,000 roubles, this being the first time that the Russian Budget has reached four milliards. The excess of expenditure over revenue (73,000,000 roubles) will be covered by credit operations. The ordinary revenue exceeds the corresponding figure in the 1916 Budget by 967,000,000 roubles. Receipts from the sale of alcoholic liquors, which in 1913 amounted approximately to 900,000,000 roubles, are estimated in the 1917 Budget only at 50,000,000 roubles, while the net profit from this sale only amounts to 10,000,000 roubles. Thus this business has completely lost its importance as a source of State revenue, and other articles have quite taken its place. An explanatory memorandum attached to the Budget points out that the taxable resources of the Empire have increased almost entirely as a result of the enforcement of temperance. The data which follow confirm this, for the State revenues for the second year of the war exceeded those of the first year by 45 per cent., besides which, loans amounting to some 8,000,000,000 roubles have been placed on the home money market during these two years. At the same time the volume of savings bank deposits is constantly increasing, as is shown by the fact that the deposits during the first nine months of 1916 exceeded 1,000,000,000 roubles.

ENEMY INFLUENCE IN TRADE.

The Committee appointed by the Unionist war group to consider and report on the steps necessary for the elimination of enemy influence from British trade and public life, held its first meeting yesterday at the House of Commons. In view of the importance of the work undertaken by the Committee, Sir Edward Carson was requested himself to undertake the chairmanship, and readily consented to do so. The members of the Committee are:—Sir Edward Carson (Chairman), Mr. Leslie Scott, Mr. Joynson Hicks, Sir Owen Philipps, Mr. Rupert Gwynne, Sir Henry Craik, Mr. Ronald McNeill, and Mr. R. J. Neville.

A thorough examination of the very wide field of inquiry suggested by the Committee's appointment is intended, and evidence of the extent and working of German influence will be invited from banking and trading interests generally, with the object of formulating proposals for submission to the Government.

EXPORTS TO HOLLAND.

The Foreign Office announces that no further licences will be issued in the United Kingdom or in British possessions overseas for the exportation to Holland of calcium carbide until further notice, alum and sulphate of alumina until December 31st, and meat, bacon, fish (other than canned), and sheepskins until further notice. Privy Council licences will similarly not be accepted by the Customs as authority for shipment without special authorisation from the War Trade Department. Holders of unexhausted licences should at once communicate with the War Trade Department, stating the reasons for which they desire to receive such special authorisation.

In modification of the notice issued in the Press on September 29th, it is announced that the restrictions on the importation of vaseline into Denmark are now cancelled.

ISLE OF MAN CAMP MUTINY.

Before the Military Court at Knockaloe Aliens' Camp, Peel, Isle of Man, yesterday, Georges Goller, third officer on the Hamburg-American liner and German Naval Reserve Officer, was charged with inciting fellow-prisoners to mutiny, whereby a riot occurred, and three German hut captains injured. For the prosecution it was stated that following a meeting addressed by the accused on September 23rd, a mutiny occurred. Three hut captains were nearly murdered, canteens were robbed, and windows broken. The military had to issue a final warning before the disorder ceased. The compound was orderly until the arrival of a batch of prisoners, chiefly German sailors, in July. The prisoner called evidence denying that he incited the prisoners. Adjourned.

MARKET REPORTS.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN, N.C.R., October 19.—There was another strong representation of both home and shipping buying interests in evidence here this morning, but with a slacker trade and rather liberal supplies of stock to dispose of, values worked out disappointingly and weaker in each division. That there was some material shrinkage in the volume of business practicable, too, as compared with last week's proceedings, was sufficiently evidenced by the big proportion of unplaced animals at close of market, and which much more than counterbalanced the increased offerings to be reckoned with. The cautious and reserved attitude of exporters especially seems difficult to explain in view of the generally firm and rather encouraging tone of cross-Channel markets recently. Of course, at present abnormal level of values here and dear freights, it is obviously judicious for dealers and commission men to keep some reasonable margin in hand to meet eventualities, but we are informed that owing to shortage in shipping accommodation and facilities recently, and consequent delays, disappointments and losses by store missing connections and markets at the other side, greater economic safeguards than ever are now being studied by exporters to the disadvantage of raisers. At all events cattle to-day suffered a depression of 1/- to 2/- per cwt., and sheep a couple of shillings per head. Veal dear.

	Numbers on Sale. This week as compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1915	1914
Beasts	5,658	Increase 270	3,722	6,045
Sheep and lambs	7,393	Increase 396	5,589	7,334
Veal calves	11	Decrease 5	8	42

The beast market opened with a cautious and dragging tone, and notwithstanding that really choice finished qualities of steers and heifers formed a small proportion of the supply, demand was of a restricted nature. In fact, all classes of cattle participated in the distinctly checked and weaker tendency of things, and values over the week must be written 1/- to 2/- per cwt. cheaper. Choice qualities of beef scaled from 49/- to 52/6 per cwt., and extra or fancy sorts 53/- to 54/-, with good useful and medium classes 44/- to 48/-, and rougher and plainer animals say 36/- to 42/6 per cwt. Nothing sold better as matters went than good stamp of fat cows, in which both local fleshers and exporters were keen. Best drafts realised 38/- to 44/-, and 46/-, and extra nice young perhaps 47/6 per cwt. on the outside; commoner sorts going from 34/- to 36/6 and 37/6 per cwt.

In sheep department likewise the day's proceedings went in a slower and easier groove. The shipping support especially was not near so well maintained as previously, although choice fat hoggets suitable to south of England markets were sought for. Choice home trade wethers averaged 9½d. to 10½d. per lb.; do. ewes 8½d. to 9½d. per lb., and coarse descriptions of mutton was about 7½d. to 8½d. per lb.

Veal calves numbered under a dozen exhibits; a few extra nice drew 10d. to 11d. per lb., but ordinary classes within 8d. to 9½d. per lb. according to type.

DUBLIN STORE, October 19.—The slow and dragging nature of trade on the fat stock market this morning rather disheartened dealers and feeders with regard to investments in store beasts, of which entries for the respective competitive gatherings were of much the same extent as last Thursday. For the pick of good forward beasts with scope breeding values went well in touch with previous currencies, but for other descriptions there was decidedly more irregularity in biddings. For a fuller guide to the day's proceedings a reference to salesmasters' reports will be instructive.

DUBLIN DAIRY, October 19.—There were just 250 milch cows on market, mostly dealers' drafts from country fairs, etc. The shipping enquiry proved rather keen, and home demand of usual character for prime heavy milkers and springers, which continue to draw good money. Doubtful sorts of cows, however, difficult to negotiate. Best average springers and fresh calved cows with calf at foot £28 to £38; fancy sorts of big cows £40 to £45, according to capacity and type; ordinary milchers £20 to £27 each; small and inferior difficult to quote for.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN PIG (North Circular road), October 19.—Entries here this morning were on the small side, just 886, but enough in the correspondingly quieter state of trade. In fact, the absence of a prominent shipper and a few home dealers made a good deal of difference in the energy and cohesion of things. Still, with a struggle, sellers were tolerably successful in maintaining prices up to previous level, and business eventually came out equal to a clearance of pens. Quotations:—Choice sizeable and stout home baconers and porkers, 88/- to 92/- and 93/- per cwt., and heavy shipping weights, 84/- to 90/- per cwt.; stores of forward type, 75/- to 98/- each; slips, 50/- to 70/-; bonhams, 28/- to 46/- each.

GANLY, SONS, AND CO., Cattle Salesmen, Offices and Wool Stores, 18, 19, and 20 Usher's quay, Dublin. Cattle Market Report, Thursday, 19th October, 1916.—The trade for cattle proved rather slow and dragging at weaker prices all round; yet, considering the increase in numbers, a fair clearance was effected. Best suitable sheep realised last week's rates; rough and inferior qualities lower and more difficult to place. Beef (1st class), 50/- to 53/- per cwt.; choice Angus crosses, 55/- per cwt.; second class cattle, from 47/- to 49/- per cwt. (live); mutton, 9d. to 10½d. Telephone No. 216. Telegrams—"Ganly, Usher's quay, Dublin." Auction dates:—Tuesday, October, 24th—Letting of 220 Irish Acres of Prime Old Pasture Lands at Bodenstown, Sallins, for Col. D. Hartley. Wednesday, October 25th—Letting of 230 Acres of Prime Old Grazing Land at Moyglare, Maynooth, for A. E. Kinahan, Esq. Store Cattle Auction every Thursday in our paddocks, 63 Prussia street, commencing at 11 o'clock.—(Advt.)

GAVIN LOW, LTD., 50 Prussia street, Dublin, 19th October, 1916. Market Report.—Supplies:—Cattle, 5,658—increase, 270; sheep, 7,393—increase, 396. We had a further increase of 270 head of cattle. Prices for best descriptions were quite as good as last week, but weaker for other classes. There was practically no change in the trade for sheep, last week's prices of best descriptions being well maintained. Quotations:—Best bullocks and heifers, from 52/- to 55/- per cwt., live weight; other bullocks and heifers, from 43/- to 51/- per ditto; mutton, 9d. to 11d per lb. Fixtures:—October 21st—Letting of 800 Acres Prime Grazing Lands at Kilbrew North and South, near Ashbourne, for Major Brudenell Murphy. O'CONNOR AND SON, Auctioneers, Cattle, Sheep, and Wool Salesmen, 49 Queen street, Dublin, 19th October, 1916.—Market Report—Though shipping facilities at our port are unsatisfactory, and markets were somewhat adverse during the past week on the other side, and though our numbers to-day were the highest of the season, still we must say, though the market opened slowly, it improved considerably as the hours went on, and a clearance was effected, prices of bullocks and heifers ranging from 48/- to 54/- per cwt., live weight. PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—BACON—The firmness in the bacon market here for all descriptions of American continued unabated, Chicago advices, with hogs again decidedly dearer and arrivals of bacon here moderate, causing holders to be reserved. A fair consumptive demand was again experienced, especially for short backs and Cumberlands, but no further improvement in values was reported for any cut. Irish, Danish, Canadian, and Dutch moved moderately into consumption at yesterday's prices. SHOULDERS firm, with a fair business reported in New York and square cut at the recent advance, but picnics remained at late prices. HAMS again moved fairly into consumption, though no quotable advance was made in any description. LARD on the spot, following the further rise in Chicago and a good demand, showed an advance of 9d. per cwt. for prime steam, and 1/- to 1/6 on American refined. CHEESE firm and in fair request at recent full prices for finest white and coloured. BUTTER quiet, and prices easier owing to liberal offerings of States and Canadian. EGGS quiet, though higher prices in some cases asked for Irish, but Canadian easier. REFINED LARD FUTURES—The advance in Chicago had already been partly taken into account here, and initial transactions in the chief trading positions showed only 1½d. to 4½d. improvement on last night. Good buying, however, was indulged in, partly from shorts to cover, and prices improved, especially for December, which showed an advance of 10½d. per cwt. at the finish of early session, with business at 85/9 to 86/3, and other positions quoted gains of 4½d. to 7½d. October realising 86/6, November 87/10½ to 88/-, and January 84/- to 84/4½; while trading was introduced in May delivery, which sold at 85/- and 84/9 per cwt. Values further improved in the afternoon on Chicago opening dearer, and continued good demand, final rates being 9d. per cwt. dearer for October, and 10½d. to 1/4½ for other months. October realised 88/10½, November 88/4½ to 88/6, December 86/10½ and 86/9, and January 84/10½, 85/-, and 84/9; while May was quoted 84/6 to 85/- per cwt.

WOOL.

DUBLIN WEEKLY, October 19.—The general tone governing the wool markets is strong, and tendency is in the dearer direction. The position, however, can be of little interest at this side of the Channel, as there are very few holders of any appreciable quantity of free Irish wools.

BRADFORD, October 19.—Values are dearer throughout the market as a result of the raw material situation and the scarcity of stocks of tops. Topmakers are now asking as much as 4/7 for sixty-fours top for delivery next March, and some will not quote at all. Crossbreds are also making from ½d. to ¾d. more. There is still a good deal of leeway to make up with regard to military needs.

HAY AND STRAW.

LONDON, October 19.—Supplies were moderate, and passed off with a steady demand at late rates. Quotations:—Best meadow hay, 125/- to 150/-; best clover, 130/- to 150/-; secondary, 110/- to 125/-; mixtures and sainfoin, 130/- to 150/- per ton; straw, 45/- to 52/- per load, delivered.

MANCHESTER, October 19.—On the Produce Exchange supplies were again reported on the short side, principally owing to labour shortage in the producing districts. Prices generally unchanged, and still very firm. Quotations:—Up to £7 10s. for new Lincolnshire clover and mixture; new meadow, £7 7s. 6d.; straw, new, 76/8 to 80/- per ton, all delivered Manchester.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY, SONS, AND CO.

There was a good show of cattle penned and a large attendance of buyers. Demand was good at recent prices, and practically every lot changed hands. Good forward-conditioned bullocks and heifers fetched as high as £27 5/-, £26 15/-, £26, £25 10/-, and £24 10/-, with a large number selling from £19 to £23 10/. There were several lots of young cattle of nice quality, which sold from £12 10/- to £15. As regards live weight values, best bullocks and heifers brought about last week's quotations—namely, from 48/- to 52/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The supply at this week's sale totalled about the same as last week. The entries were mostly of a good class. There was a large attendance of buyers and a better trade was experienced at higher prices. Some well-bred lots of Hereford crosses, which included a choice consignment from Mr. W. W. Odlum, made as high as 55/- per cwt. Lord Bessborough showed three waggons of beautifully-bred Aberdeen Angus crosses, which would average about 52/- per cwt. The ordinary run of animals realised from 48/- to 52/. Horned bullocks made from £27 2/6 to £21 15/, horned heifers £23 5/- to £19 17/6, A.A. bullocks £27 5/- to £19, Hereford bullocks £23 5/- to £20 12/6, pollies £25 to £19 12/6. Some nice lots of 1- and two-year-old heifers made from £11 17/6 to £14 15/. Bullocks of the same age made from £11 to £17.

MESSRS. L. CUFFE AND SONS.

There were again plenty of cattle, and a very level, useful lot, particularly of polly bullocks. The latter class, which have not been selling any better than horned beasts for the past month, came near into their own, and, with a few English and Scotch customers operating, any nicely-bred lots made from 50/- to 52/6, with one or two lots even higher. For horned bullocks, from 48/- to 51/- was about the commercial value. These quotations applied to pollys at £20 15/-, £22 15/-, £21 15/-, £22, £23 2/6, and £21 10/-, and to horned cattle at £20, £19 17/6, £21 10/-, £20 10/-, £21, £22 5/-, £19 5/-, and £19 10/. There were again very few heifers in such a large number of cattle. Sale, as usual, next week.

SURVEYORS' INSTITUTION.

The Executive Committee of the Irish Branch met yesterday at their offices, 110 Grafton street, Dublin. Mr. Fane Vernon (Chairman) presided, and there were also present—Mr. R. E. Maunsell, Mr. Harry Franks, Mr. Frederick A. B. Turner, Mr. W. H. F. Verschoyle, Mr. Charles Dickinson, and the Secretary, Mr. B. J. Nemcombe. The Committee had under consideration many letters from members dealing with income tax questions, and particularly in connection with the payment of Schedule B, Income Tax, it being noted that the Revenue claims for the additional tax (raised from one-third of the valuation to the whole valuation) is now legalised by Section 43 of the 1916 Finance Act. The Committee were of opinion that care should be taken by taxpayers in checking the correctness of the demands made for Schedule B, Tax, and to see that they are supplied in every case by the Surveyor of Taxes with the "Claim for Exemption" Forms No. 38, which should be filled and returned before the notice of assessment on Form 63 B is served on them. The Committee were also engaged with matters relating to the sales of estates under the Land Purchase Acts, the present value of timber in Ireland, finances, and the membership of the Institution in Ireland.

"I would like to have my name on your list of testimonials. About ten years ago my knee was covered with ulcers. I tried lots of different treatments, but nothing seemed to do any good. I started taking 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' I had four small bottles and the ulcers all healed up. About five years after my knee started swelling again, and I took two more small bottles and the swelling went away. This will make the fourth year I have been cured, and my knee is still well. CORK, THURSDAY NIGHT.

There was a decided change for the better in the quality of the coursing at Lakelands to-day, when a brilliant wind up made amends for the disappointment experienced on the opening afternoon. With very few exceptions the trials were of an eminently satisfactory type, due to a marked improvement in the slipping, and the officials of the club are to be complimented on the splendid success which they achieved. Sixty-one courses having been decided on Wednesday, forty-eight remained over for to-day, and with hares plentiful, all four stakes were brought to a definite issue. A surprise was forthcoming in the Blackrock Stakes, in the third round of which the favourite, Big Bug, was accounted for by the Marquis Conyngham's Stage Box, after he had led the latter, the Ballincollig representative being outcounted by the clever greyhound, who handled a jolly hare very smartly, and gained a highly meritorious victory. Subsequently Stage Box was led and well beaten by The Monarch, whose win in the deciding course over Silent Leader, whom he led three lengths and outfooted in a nice working trial, crowned a series of distinctly smart performances. S.O.S. II. and Blue Peril II. each succumbed in the third round of the Bracelet Stakes, and then Ballyowen Boy II. was put out by Lucky Number III., who in the deciding course maintained his good form, and after leading Prospect Lady, placed the stake to the credit of Miss Lynch. Fortune's Wheel II. had a comparatively easy journey in the Ballintemple Stakes, and a popular local success was gained by Make Up in the Beaumont Stakes. The slipping to-day was entrusted to W. O'Donohoe, who got through his work right well.

SPORTING NEWS.

LIMERICK JUNCTION MEETING, THIS DAY.

The second meeting at the newly-established Limerick Junction course bids fair to be even more successful than the inaugural fixture last month, and that the place has caught on with owners is made manifest by the splendid entries received for the various events. Indeed, the programme to be submitted on both days is suggestive of capital sport, and the promoters are to be congratulated on the happy outcome of their efforts to provide first-class racing at such a conveniently-situated course. That large fields will be seen out is certain, as the number of boxes ordered amount to close on 150, and winner-finding in the circumstances will be more difficult than usual. The facilities for reaching the scene of action from the chief centres will be found ample, and from Kingsbridge special trains will be despatched each day at 9.30 a.m. and 10.40 a.m., the latter of which is due to arrive at 1 o'clock and return at 4.45. Some of the following may win:—

Directors' Plate—Gainthorpe or Aunt Eliza.
Limerick Junction Plate—Mountain Park or Another Surprise.
Ballykisteen Plate—Sospello or Feodorovna.
Stand Plate—Brave Simon or Indian Star.
Stewards' Plate—Golden Wisdom.
Solohead Plate—Daly Lad or Fair Springs.

GOWRAN PARK (CO. KILKENNY) MEETING, YESTERDAY.

Heavy rain during the early part of the day, and for the greater portion of the time racing was in progress, acted as a spoil sport at Gowran Park yesterday. The meeting, which was the second of the season, was, nevertheless, very enjoyable, and a big crowd witnessed the sport. A committee of local ladies looked after the luncheon and tea rooms, and the profits were given to the Red Cross Association. Racing opened with the Kilkenny Plate, for which Princess was backed in preference to Frejus and Sparkle; but, though leading in the early stages, the daughter of Captain Kettle was beaten a long way from home, and Frejus easily landed the spoils. A more interesting race followed, when seven horses went to the post for the Autumn Plate. Vagabond, who shared favouritism with I See, was in the van for most of the journey, but in the straight I See, Scotch Wolf, and Bee Fast joined issue, and for the last furlong the four battled out a great finish. Bee Fast was travelling so fast passing the stands that it looked any reasonable odds on his overtaking I See and Vagabond, but the former of this pair, who held the inside position, struggled on gamely, and won by a head, while Vagabond was only a short head off third, and Scotch Wolf close up fourth. Mr. H. Ussher's stable brought off a double event when Dooley Ooley, the favourite for the October Plate, won a clever victory from Henriette, who but for taking too much out of herself at the fences would likely have scored. Nine runners were declared for the Welter Plate, but as neither Pankattan nor Kate's Brother could be found, the starter was given instructions not to wait for them, and neither was a runner. Odds were laid on Diwedd, but these never looked like being landed, and the race fell an easy prey to the outsider, Lady Donore, who at Listowel last week sadly disappointed her connections in a steeplechase. Backers got their losses back quickly, however, as Sergeant Murphy, the favourite for the Stayers' Plate, led all the way, and won in a canter. Details:—

2.0—KILKENNY PLATE of 30 sovs.; second received 2 sovs. A handicap steeplechase. Two miles.
Capt. Scott Murray's b. g. FREJUS, by Perigord—Varra, 5, 11-10 ...J. Hogan 1

Betting—Evens Princess, 6 to 4 agst. FREJUS, 6 to 1 Sparkle.
Princess led for a mile and a half, when Sparkle took up the running, but was headed after the last fence by Frejus, who won in a canter by five lengths; a similar distance divided second and third.

2.15—AUTUMN PLATE of 45 sovs.; second received 3 sovs. A handicap flat race. About one mile, two furlongs, and 50 yards.

Betting—2 to 1 each agst. I SEE and Vagabond, 5 to 1 Bee Fast, 7 to 1 each Scotch Wolf and Another Surprise, 8 to 1 Palmless, 100 to 1 Phillie Dear.
Vagabond set the pace to I See, Palmless, Scotch Wolf, Bee Fast, and Another Surprise, until three furlongs from home, when Scotch Wolf and I See joined Vagabond. Inside the distance Bee Fast also drew up to the leaders, and in a fine finish I See won by a head from Bee Fast, with Vagabond a short head off third. Scotch Wolf was close up fourth, and Palmless fifth.

2.45—OCTOBER PLATE of 30 sovs.; second received 2 sovs. A maiden steeplechase. Two miles.

Betting—Evens DOOLEY OOLEY, 5 to 1 each agst. Henriette, Little Slavey, and Hackalong, 20 to 1 any other.
Colthorne led for half a mile, but then dropped back last, and was soon pulled up. Hackalong settled down in front, and led to the last fence, where Dooley Ooley drew out, followed by Henriette, and won by a length and a half; a bad third. Hackalong was fourth.

Murphy's Broidery, 4, 10-4 (Mr. W. J. Parkinson). (Winner trained by Mr. R. G. Cleary, at Streamstown, Mullingar.)
Betting—5 to 4 on Diwedd, 5 to 1 each agst. Picture Saint and Bunny Girl, 7 to 1 Broidery, 10 to 1 LADY DONORE, 20 to 1 any other.
Pankattan, 5, 10-4 (Mr. B. Kirby) and Kate's Brother, 4, 10-4 (Mr. H. S. Harrison) were weighed out, but could not be found, and did not come under the starter's control.
Donor's Green cut out the work from Picture Saint, Lady Donore, and Clonbrock, with Diwedd last. After a mile Bunny Girl assumed command, but half a mile further on gave way to Lady Donore, who made the remainder of the running, and won in a canter by twenty lengths; a length divided second and third. Picture Saint was fourth and Clonbrock next.

3.45—STAYERS' PLATE of 50 sovs.; second received 5 sovs. A handicap steeplechase. Three miles.
Mr. E. C. Hawkins' ch. g. SERGEANT MURPHY, by General Symons—Rose Graft, 6, 10-2 ...C. Hawkins 1

Sergeant Murphy made all the running, and won in a canter by twenty lengths; a similar distance divided second and third. Royal Field fell, and Ant Even refused.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

The first race at Gowran Park yesterday was put back a quarter of an hour owing to the late arrival of the Dublin special.

Stabling has been booked for 150 horses for the Limerick Junction Meeting.

When Royal Field fell in the Stayers' Plate at Gowran Park yesterday, Joseph Delany, his rider, got a bad shaking.

Ballaghtobin's success in the Heath Plate at Newmarket yesterday does not entail a penalty in the Cambridgeshire.

A committee of ladies looked after the tea and lunch rooms at Gowran Park Meeting yesterday, and handed over the profits to the Red Cross Association.

At the end of the present racing Mr. E. Hulton's horses will be transferred from Whatcomb to Newmarket, where they will be trained by W. Walters. A few of them will, however, remain at Epsom, as heretofore.

The following are some of the likely starters and jockeys for the Middle Park Plate to-day:—Grand Fleet (J. Childs), Magpie (H. Jones), Tagamor (Donoghue), Molly Desmond (Whalley), Brown Prince (Fox), Dresden (Trigg), Kingston Black (Lancaster).

Several more well-known British racing yachts have been sold to Scandinavia. The chief of these is Mr. J. R. Payne's 15-metre yacht Hispania, which has been sold to a member of the Nylanska Yachtklubben, Helsingfors. Hispania was originally built for the King of Spain, and won two King's Cups in 1914. Another crack "fifteen" which will go north is Sir C. Allom's Istria, which has been bought by a member of the Kongelig Norsk Seilforening. Istria was built to Nicholson's designs, and was the first of the now fashionable "Marconi"-rigged boats.

Yesterday the Stewards of the Jockey Club called before them J. Clement, the trainer of Matcho Paani, to explain why the horse had been entered for the Duxford Handicap at the Newmarket Third Extra Meeting, for which he was not qualified. They satisfied themselves that Clement was only acting for Captain Renwick during his absence on military service, and had no previous experience in entering horses, and, having regard to the fact that Clement had himself drawn official notice to his mistake, they decided not to inflict any penalty, or take further steps in the matter.

St. Columba's College played their first at home match on Wednesday, when they defeated Mr. Wisdom's XV. by 5 goals and 4 tries (27 points) to nil. Each of the following scored:—Goodbody (2), Huggard (1), King (1), Hopking (1), Scully (1), and Shaw (1). Deane, Dowse, and Goodbody each converted a try. For the winning side, King, Hopking, and Goodbody were the pick of the backs; while Scully, Dowse, Symes, and Kennedy were the best of a hard-working pack of forwards. Callaghan, Manly (sub.), and Wisdom played a plucky uphill game for the losers.

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE (S.C.T.) v. MOUNTJOY SCHOOL (S.C.T.).

One of the best schools' matches so far this season was that played at Donnybrook on Wednesday, when both teams showed excellent form and great keenness. It was a very fast game, in which very few mistakes were made by either side, and the kicking and tackling quite good. St. Andrew's had a shade the best of the exchanges, but the Mountjoy defence was sound, and the result was a draw of 1 try each.

NEWMARKET SECOND OCTOBER MEETING—YESTERDAY.

BALLAGHTOBIN'S IMPRESSIVE WIN.

If dull and cold, the weather remained fine during the time that racing was in progress. Compared with the Cesarewitch day, there was a marked falling off in the attendance. Nevertheless, the company could not be regarded as otherwise than an excellent one.

A busy start was made when no fewer than twenty-five assembled at the post for the Coventry Plate. Of these, Invincible, beaten a head by Furze Bush at the last meeting here, always had the call of the market, with Noonoo and Mazurka next in request. They finished in the order mentioned, Invincible scoring easily. In laying odds of 7 to 4 on Tagrag for the Prendergast Stakes backers came to grief, and an exciting contest between Poignant (who won the Suffolk Nursery on Tuesday) and Lammermuir resulted in a dead-heat.

Interest attached to the Heath Plate owing to the fact that the Cambridgeshire candidate, Ballaghtobin, was one of the contestants. Since his location in England he has apparently come on a lot, and, opening at 5 to 2, he left off a sound 2 to 1 chance. This confidence was fully justified, for he won in a fashion which greatly impressed those present, with the result that after the race 7 to 1 was taken about him for the Cambridgeshire, for which his victory entails no penalty.

On the strength of his winning at the last meeting here, Ho-Tei was made a sound favourite for the Ditch Mile Nursery. He ran well, but succumbed to Kronslott, who ran second to Glenalvon in September. Ferox beat some more fancied candidates in the Lowther Stakes, and King's Joker and Whitewash came to the help of backers in the two succeeding races. Details:—

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' TOBACCO FUND.

MEETING IN DUBLIN.

A meeting was held this afternoon in the Mansion House, Dublin, for the purpose of appointing a committee and making arrangements for organising a Flag Day and collection in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Tobacco Fund. The attendance was principally composed of ladies.

The Lady Mayoress, who presided, said the collection was intended to take place throughout Ireland. Although various charitable works were being carried on there had been no combined effort to assist the fund which endeavoured to provide soldiers with the comforts of tobacco.

Miss Maguire, hon. secretary, announced that letters regretting inability to attend and wishing success to the object of the meeting had been received from the Lord Mayor, the Lord Chancellor and Lady O'Brien, Lord Decies, and others.

General Sir Bryan Mahon, K.C.V.O., proposed a resolution to the effect that a Flag and Collection Day be organised throughout Ireland in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Tobacco Fund. He said the men at the front deserved everything that could be done for them, and no body of people could be more grateful for kindness. In the matter of looking after the comforts of the soldiers, the women of the United Kingdom had a proud record to look back upon. (Applause.)

Dr. Kinkaid, who seconded, said the object in view was a very good one.

Mr. Montgomery, on behalf of the Leinster Regiment's Comforts Committee, mentioned that a regular supply of cigarettes and tobacco was sent every fortnight to the men of the regiment. He suggested that the money collected in Dublin should not be sent to London, as there were many organisations in Ireland which were doing excellent work by supplying comforts for Irish soldiers.

Mr. Whiteside Dane mentioned that the Central Advisory Committee of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers sent supplies regularly to every battalion of the regiment. He was somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of administering money for Irish regiments in London. He would rather see the money spent in Ireland. (Hear, hear.)

Miss Maguire pointed out that 50 per cent. of the money was to be spent on tobacco of Irish manufacture.

Mr. Maddock said that in regard to the matter he was a complete Home Ruler, and he believed that money raised in Ireland should be spent in Ireland.

The resolution was adopted.

Major George O'Connor expressed himself as strongly averse to spending their money in England. It should be understood that whatever was realised should be spent in Ireland and upon Irish regiments. He proposed:—"That a committee and honorary secretary and treasurer be appointed, this committee to include representatives of the now existing regimental and other committees, and with power to apportion all the funds raised for the benefit of Irishmen serving in the Army or Navy."

Mrs. Isaacs seconded the motion, which was passed.

A vote of thanks to the Lady Mayoress was adopted on the motion of General Sir Bryan Mahon, seconded by Mr. Whiteside Dane.

PROVINCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

High Price for Potatoes.—Yesterday potatoes in Wicklow fetched the extraordinarily high price of 19s. 6d. and 20s. per barrel. Not for the last forty years did potatoes realise such a high price.

£1,255 For Forty Acres.—Mr. T. Ashe, auctioneer, New Ross, put up for sale at Graigue, County Wexford, a farm containing forty acres statute, and it was bought by Mrs. Prendergast for £1,255.

Municipal Workers.—The Athlone Town Council, at their meeting last night, granted an increase, or war bonus, of 2s. a week to their workers, whom the Chairman said were the best-paid workers in Athlone.

"Partition" Dead.—The Athlone Town Council did not consider a resolution from the Kerry County Council, protesting against the partition of Ireland, as they regarded the proposal as dead.

Soldier's Action for Loss of an Arm.—At the Ennis Quarter Sessions John Murphy, a soldier, had an action against the Great Southern and Western Railway Company claiming damages for the loss of an arm. The evidence was that Private Murphy, with two other soldiers, was returning to his regiment from Ennis. At the Limerick Station, when hurrying to catch the Rosslare train, he was pushed back from his train by a porter and fell on the platform, his arm going down between the platform and the carriages. He received such injuries that the arm had to be amputated. The defence was that the train was well in motion when Murphy dashed up. An attempt was made to stop him, when he fell. He was not jostled, as alleged. Judge Bodkin awarded £200 compensation.

Fermanagh High Sheriff's Generosity.—Recognising the value of war economy, the High Sheriff of the County Fermanagh, Mr. Stuart Verschoyle, gave this year no luncheon to the Grand Jury, and he has now, instead, given £100 to the Fermanagh County Hospital.

Petty Sessions Clerk's Sudden Death.—A sensation was caused in Carlingford Courthouse yesterday when Mr. Thomas Martin, C.P.S., fell dead just as the business of the Court was about to commence. Mr. J. Woulfe Flanagan, R.M., was the only magistrate on the bench at the time. Mr. Martin was instructed to swear the police, and, taking up the book, he said, "Police, come forward to be sworn," when he swayed and collapsed in his seat. Mr. O'Hagan, solicitor, cycled for a priest and a doctor. Dr. Finnegan, J.P., Carlingford, and Rev. Father Quinn, P.P., were in immediate attendance, but life was found to be extinct. Deceased had been under Dr. Finnegan's care for the past twelve months for heart trouble.

ASSISTANT CLERKS (ABSTRACTORS).

Stephens & Bourke

THERE is a bigger reason, this winter than last, for wearing cloth-top boots. Not only because they are fashionable, cosy, becoming, does the well-dressed woman buy herself a pair, but also because they are, in their own way, patriotic. Boots with glace kid legs eat up the national stock of leather enormously and, were they to be much worn, more and more glace kid would have to be bought from America. So those who wear cloth-top boots are actually helping to keep the country economically sound and self-supporting.

And the new Lotus cloth-top boots are as nice as could be wished for, as anyone who pays a visit to Stephens & Bourke's Shop will see for herself. Also, if she goes fairly soon, before the supplies are exhausted, she will be able to secure a pair that looks charming and fits as though made to her own measure.

¶ The smoker: his plaint: its cure.

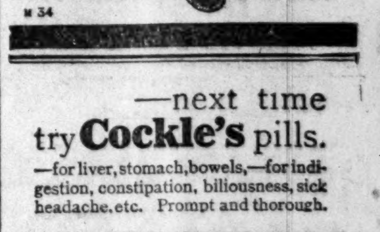

The smoking world becomes more fastidious every day. The call is more and more pronounced for a test-proved tobacco of steadfast quality.

It isn't strange, therefore, to note the increasing demand for the grand old brand of

and how the many contented smokers are seriously recommending their "uncertain" friends to make up their minds.

Mellow is the joy of the slow smoker. Its slow-burning quality enhances the leisure-hour pipe and permits prolonged enjoyment of the characteristic flavour.

Why not start on Mellow to-day?

Rumania and Germany.

The Rumanian communiqués have consistently been models of trustworthiness and precision. They have based no extravagant claims upon successes; they have admitted reverses as frankly as any belligerent ever admits them. This circumstance invests with a peculiarly encouraging quality the report from the Rumanian Headquarters which announced a recovery against General von Falkenhayn's advance. It was in the following terms: "In the Predeal region"—in the region, that is, of the important pass carrying the railway from Brasso to Bukharest—"the Rumanian troops are resuming the offensive, and are pursuing the enemy on the Transylvanian slope. Very stubborn fighting is in progress. On the whole Carpathian front the enemy is attacking violently, but so far without success. All the military news is reassuring." It is seldom that an official communiqué varies a cold chronicle of military events with such a statement as that contained in the last sentence, and then only on the most solid grounds—if only for the obvious reason that such a statement would induce a worse effect upon public opinion if it were to be followed by unfavourable news. This encouraging report from Rumania coincides with reports from hostile sources to the effect that Russian reinforcements have already arrived, and are assisting in the defence of the passes; and it is noticeable that neither the German nor the Austrian communiqués have claimed any progress during the last few days. There is no reason to disbelieve the hostile reports that Russian reinforcements are already assisting the Rumanians. In any case, the Russians are rendering their southern neighbours substantial assistance by renewing with great weight their attacks on the Austro-German front in Volhynia and Galicia. Heavy fighting continues on this front with no clearly defined result. Unofficial commentators in Petrograd credit the new Russian offensive with various purposes more or less ambitious. It may have certain specific strategic aims; but it is probable that its main object is to keep the Austro-Germans in Volhynia and Galicia closely engaged, and to prevent them from detaching reinforcements to General von Falkenhayn in Transylvania. If it achieves that object, it will have justified itself sufficiently.

We shall probably be inviting disappointment if we look as yet for any sudden or sweeping change in the situation on Rumania's western front. Action engaged on the line of a long range of hills like that which forms the frontier between Rumania and Transylvania is likely to be fluctuating in its fortunes. The difficulty of the attack is not merely to cross the frontier passes, but to debouch from them. The accepted principle of defence is not to hold the passes in strength, but to concentrate the bulk of the defending forces at the points where the roads from the frontiers converge, so that it can direct its attack on the heads of the invading columns. The problem in both cases is the cardinal problem of all strategy—that of bringing superior strength to bear at the decisive point. General von Falkenhayn's great opportunity consisted in his chance of breaking through the defence while it was still compromised by the dispersed character of the earlier Rumanian advance. The splendidly stubborn rearguard actions which the Rumanians have fought in the passes have already gone far towards depriving him of that opportunity, and every day's delay in his advance now means a perfection of the Rumanian higher command's arrangements for reorganising its defensive system and redistributing its forces. It would be too much to expect, in spite of the reassuring report from Bukharest, that it should as yet be in a position to return fully to the offensive; but we may reasonably hope now that the crisis is past, and that the check to the enemy will be confirmed and gradually developed to our Ally's advantage. The weakness of General von Falkenhayn's position—and, indeed, increasingly the weakness of all the enemy's operations—is numerical. The concentration under his command is credited with a strength of two hundred thousand men. Marshal von Mackensen in the Dobrudja is not believed to dispose of more than one hundred thousand. Against this aggregate of three hundred thousand men on her two fronts Rumania can oppose a strength, when her Army is, as it must be by now, fully mobilised, of at least half a million men. With Russian support she should be in a numerical superiority of nearly two to one, and she should soon be in a position to apply it.

The stakes are high in this encounter on Rumania's frontier. We have already considered what Germany stands to gain if her stroke succeeds: the moral damage to the Allies if their latest recruit is submerged like Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro, and the consequent greatly needed gain of prestige by the enemy; the possession of the rich Danubian harvest to eke out Germany's scanty store of food; above all, the enlargement of that "corridor" to the Orient which is her very life-line in the war, and is now potentially under threat. On the other hand, if what was meant to be a swift and crushing blow fails, like the offensives at Verdun and in the Trentino, for lack of the necessary strength to carry it through after the initial check; if Germany has to reckon with the danger that the blow at Rumania may be not only warded off, but returned—in this event what does she stand to lose? The attack upon Rumania is the latest, and we may hope the last, in the enemy's series of desperate efforts to postpone the evil day when sheer dearth of men will compel her to accept a grimly defensive attitude in the presence of inevitable defeat. These efforts do succeed in postponing that evil day; but, if in the upshot they fail, they ensure that the last phase, when it comes, will be a short phase. Germany, when Rumania entered the war, might have abandoned half Transylvania and established a short defensive front. Such an operation would have increased her strength available for general purposes of defence on all fronts. She has preferred to embark the troops which she might have used to prolong her defence on an offensive campaign which, if it is defeated, will leave her with a longer front to hold, and less men available to hold it in common with the other fronts. Much the same process operates on the front of the Somme. The French have just carried Sailly-Saillisel, which the enemy had organised as a strong defence to Le Transloy, the next fortress covering Bapaume and the plain of Cambrai on which the Allies' operations are converging. To delay for a week or two the Allied occupation of Bapaume and Péronne the Germans keep on throwing away men in utterly fruitless counter-attacks as boldly as though their dépôts were still full to overflowing. Sir William Robertson has just said that we are now in the middle stage of the war. Germany's strategy makes that middle stage appear protracted and inconclusive; but it ensures that the last stage shall be short and decisive.

The Potato Crop.

The unfavourable state of this year's potato crop in Ireland has been a matter of common knowledge for some weeks past. To-day we have official confirmation of the bad news in the mid-October crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture, and in Mr. T. W. Russell's statement in the House of Commons. The whole story of the crop this year is unfortunate. In the first place, the area planted with potatoes is 8,000 acres less than that of last year, though it is still 3,000 acres more than that of 1914. Then the planting was late, and the lifting is going to be late. The weather has been unfavourable, and careful and thorough spraying was a special necessity. Unhappily, the sulphates required for this operation have been scarce and dear—though we gather that, if growers had been really determined to spray, they could have obtained a larger supply than was actually taken. A good potato crop this year would have been of great value to Irish farmers, for highly remunerative prices were assured for such surplus as might have been available for export. As things stand, that surplus will be extremely small. Indeed, as Captain Donelan suggested, if Ireland's own requirements were fully met, there would be no exporting at all. Mr. Russell reminded Captain Donelan that, even out of last year's excellent crop of 3,716,463 tons, only 250,000 tons were available for export. If the estimates of this year's crop furnished to the Department, which fix it at no more than two-thirds, and, perhaps, only one-half, of last year's, should prove to be well founded, then it is obvious that not only can no part of the crop really be spared for highly profitable sale in the English markets, but the Irish consumers must go short. No farmer will need to be told that, when we speak of Irish consumers, we are not giving much thought to towns-people who want potatoes for the table. They are largely supplied from market-gardens, where the crops are probably much as usual. The real importance of the Irish potato crop is as food for stock. Only a small fraction of the crop is allotted for human consumption. Already the market for young pigs is bad because of the general knowledge that potatoes for feeding them will be scarce. The rearing of stock in Ireland is to-day a matter of more than Irish importance, and it is of the first importance for Ireland's prosperity in the coming year. It is in relation to the live stock of the country that the potato crop reports are grave. The shortage of roots will throw a great strain on the supplies of imported foods, and the consequent high prices for Indian meal and oil seeds and cake will make things difficult for the farmers in the spring. They will be well advised to put all their energies into the taking of catch-crops for spring feeding. We have said that the quantities of potatoes used for human consumption in Ireland is a small fraction of the whole. Still that fraction would be extremely useful to the farmers now, and it would have been a great service to the country if people who have gardens had sown potatoes for their own household use this year. Even the quantity grown in allotments in Dublin and Belfast, though very small in relation to the whole, is not altogether negligible in these times, and great praise is due to those who are trying to extend the allotments movement. We could usefully have a large multiplication of the present number of plots.

Sir Horace Plunkett.

Irish public men of all parties have emitted a vast flood of words in recent years, but very few of those words will be remembered. Unless men think they cannot say memorable things. Sir Horace Plunkett is one of our rare Irish thinkers, and he has the gift of putting the result of long and difficult thought into phrases that will outlive him. He gave us the watch-word of the Irish co-operative movement: "Better farming, better business, better living." He incurred Mr. Dillon's wrath by the profound truth of his remark that Ireland will not prosper until she "disinfects politics with common-sense." He planted a sign-post on the road to political settlement when he said that "Anglo-Irish history is for Englishmen to remember, for Irishmen to forget." Sir Horace Plunkett rightly calls attention to our truncated, and therefore, perhaps, misleading use of this last maxim in our reference yesterday to Mr. Redmond's astonishing perversion of recent Irish history. We cannot regret an inaccuracy that has been rewarded with the letter which we print to-day. For many weeks Sir Horace Plunkett has been the victim of a very serious and painful illness. He was snatched out of public life at a moment when all his thought and anxiety were concentrated on the turbulent course of Irish politics. He has endured his suffering and enforced idleness with a patience and cheerfulness which have been an inspiration to his friends. His letter is an assurance that his long ordeal is nearing its end. It is a notable thing that, at the very time when Sir Horace Plunkett was utterly cut off from the world, the wisdom of his theory of Irish political conduct was most surely vindicated. The last four months have shown us that there can be no forcible solution of the Irish question. We cannot arrive at harmony by pointing pistols at one another's heads. The recent excursions and alarms have only served to wreck one Irish party and to widen the gaps between all Irish parties. We think that Wednesday's debate in the House of Commons has helped our country to realise that agreement among Irishmen must be a condition precedent to any lasting settlement of Irish affairs. Sir Horace Plunkett may rise from his sick-bed to find that the most fruitful part of his great life-work is still in front of him.

IRISHMEN AND IRISH HISTORY.

Letter from Sir Horace Plunkett.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your leading article of to-day you pay me the compliment of citing one of my "maxims." It is that "Irishmen should forget Irish history." I never said this. The phrase is a misquotation frequently used—though, of course, not so used by you—to justify a misinterpretation of what I wrote in a book some years out of print.

In the opening chapters of "Ireland in the New Century" I tried to explain to English readers the present effect of the old land system, the commercial restrictions, and the penal laws. On their continuing influence upon our industrial character I founded our claim to further reparation. With my own countrymen I pleaded that too much dwelling upon the past should now give way to a concentration on present opportunities and a hopeful outlook to the future. "To foster resentment," I wrote, "in respect of these old wrongs is as stupid as was the policy which gave them birth; and, even if it were possible to distribute the blame among our ancestors, I am sure we should do ourselves much harm, and no living soul any good in the reckoning." Then, addressing myself, as it were, to both peoples, I said, "Anglo-Irish history is for Englishmen to remember, for Irishmen to forget."

Nothing that I ever said or wrote has been so often cited as these ten words. But, for some obscure reason, the "Anglo-" is always omitted. I was once solemnly asked by an Irishman in Chicago why I had said that Irishmen must not read history.

I have been confined to my bed now for four months, suffering some physical pain, and more moral torture at being condemned to inactivity when there is so much for every Irishman to do. I hope to be well very soon and helping. I trust, therefore, it will not be attributed to an exaggerated sense of my own importance, or to a morbid sensitiveness, if I am concerned to uphold what I believe to be the safest mental attitude towards the sad side of our history at a time when our country's future more than ever depends on a mutual understanding of the two peoples throughout the English-speaking world.—Yours, etc.,

HORACE PLUNKETT.

IRISH RAILWAY MANAGERS.

At a meeting of the Irish Railway Managers' Conference, held in Dublin yesterday, Mr. C. A. Moore, General Manager, Belfast and County Down Railway Company, was unanimously elected Chairman of the Conference for the year 1917.

At a meeting of the Irish Committee of Management of the Railway Benevolent Institution held yesterday, Mr. C. A. Moore was also unanimously elected Chairman of the Irish Branch of the institution for the ensuing year.

Mr. Asquith has arranged to meet next Thursday a deputation from the Parliamentary group which supports the Channel tunnel project.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

153 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the division on Mr. Redmond's motion last night is that forty-seven British Radicals were found to vote for it. But when one comes to examine the names the fact is not so surprising, for, with one or two exceptions, they are those of peace advocates and other cranks who jump at any opportunity of embarrassing the Government that is carrying on the war. On reflection, I do not think the Nationalist leader will feel proud of his British "tail." About one hundred non-official Liberals (including Mr. Birrell) voted against the motion, and the rest of the majority was made up of Ministers and Unionists.

The Westminster Gazette, while abating nothing of its theoretical belief in Home Rule, takes occasion to read the Nationalists a friendly lecture. "The habit of standing aside, washing their hands of responsibility, blaming history and Dublin Castle, is as unhelpful to Ireland as it is to England. The Irish are brought to a deadlock, as well as the English, when Irishmen retire into the wilderness and throw the onus of governing their country on men whom they declare to be uncongenial or incapable. Ireland has got very near to Home Rule, and Great Britain was never more anxious to see her started on a career of self-government. But the last step, the settlement between Ulster and the rest of Ireland, must be taken by Irishmen themselves."

The Nationalists had a great innings in the House of Commons this afternoon during the question hour. Thursday is the day for Irish questions, and Irish questions mean those put by the members of the Nationalist Party, who were allowed to put in addition scores of supplementaries, whereas a Unionist anxious to put a supplementary to one of his own questions was bidden by the Speaker to refrain. The Nationalist questions covered the usual ground, and great prominence was given to the affection entertained by the party for the Sinn Feiners. Mr. Ginnell was able to put two questions with a modesty of demeanour as agreeable as it was unexpected.

Mr Lynch thought the position in Greece was a matter of urgent public importance; and, failing to get what he considered a satisfactory answer as to the recognition of M. Venezelos by the Allies, he gave notice that he would move the adjournment of the House. The Speaker was not so convinced as was Mr. Lynch about the urgency, and, when Mr. Lynch arose after questions to ask leave to move the adjournment, he said so. Mr. Lynch made his speech later in the evening, and got his reply from Lord Robert Cecil.

Mr. Duke was unable to provide Sir John Lonsdale with the recruiting figures for Ireland, but promised them for next week. The Prime Minister was absent, so that a number of questions addressed to him went unanswered. Mr. Bonar Law, who was leading the House, assured Mr. Hunt that everything possible was being done for Rumania, but he could not give military details. There were one hundred and sixty questions on the Order Paper, but, owing to the latitude given to the Nationalists in the matter of supplementaries, about sixty only were put.

The debate on the third reading of the Consolidated Fund Bill first took the form of a discussion of the financial policy of the Government. Sir Charles Henry, Sir Frederick Banbury, and some others subjected the Treasury to some criticism on the ground that it was raising money by short-dated loans and at too high a rate of interest. Mr. McKenna, in reply, mentioned the interesting fact that we have at the present moment to pay to the U.S.A. two millions sterling every working day of the week. We had not any difficulty, so far, in financing the Allies, and he saw no reason to fear that any such difficulty would arise. In regard to a further long date loan, the Treasury was of opinion that the present was an inopportune moment for floating such a loan.

The case of that very unsympathetic person, the conscientious objector, was raised by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, who complained of the tribunals and of the condition of work to which the objectors have been subjected. Let there be business-like management of them, he urged, and let not intellectual men be put to manual labour. Mr. Brace, for the Home Office, claimed that it would be grossly unfair to treat conscientious objectors better than soldiers. Lord Hugh Cecil expressed the view that to put an intellectual man at intellectual work was no test of his sincerity as a conscientious objector, and Mr. Stanton, from the Labour benches, quite pleased honourable members with the raciness of his remarks concerning these protesting citizens.

The deputation from the Irish National Teachers' Association who are seeking the grant of a war bonus to these teachers were received at the Treasury by the Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. McKenna), who was accompanied by the Chief Secretary (Mr. Duke). The deputation was introduced by Mr. John Redmond, and was supported by many other Irish members, including Sir Edward Carson, Sir John Lonsdale, Colonel James Craig, Colonel Sharman-Crawford, Mr. MacCaw, Mr. Coote, Mr. Denis Henry, Mr. Devlin, and Mr. O'Doherty. The deputation asked for a war bonus of 7s. 6d. weekly on salaries up to £100, and of 5s. weekly on salaries over that amount. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, who heard the representations made to him with great sympathy, was unable to concede so much, but, I understand, undertook to recommend grants of 4s. and 3s. for the male teachers and half those amounts for the female teachers. Sir Edward Carson suggested that the grants should be made retrospective, and that special consideration should be given to the cases of female teachers having salaries up to only about £28. Mr. McKenna promised that the bonus should take effect from July 1st, and that consideration should be given to Sir Edward Carson's other point.

Any fantastical story meets with receptive ears in these times, but I find it hard to believe that Rumania's difficulties are due to her having reposed an undue faith in Bulgaria. According to the story, there was a secret treaty between them, under which Bulgaria undertook to be neutral to her neighbour if Rumania entered the war, and that Rumania was relying on this arrangement when she threw the bulk of her army into Transylvania. Bulgarian statesmen have, as we know to our cost, displayed an extraordinary capacity for hoodwinking western diplomats, but that they should have been equally successful with their neighbours across the Danube is, to me, incredible.

Whatever the cause of Rumania's troubles, there is good reason to hope that they will soon be at an end. Unless von Falkenhayn can get through all the passes within the next two or three weeks, and can reassemble his armies on the Rumanian side without meeting with disaster, the on-coming of winter will prevent the delivery of the hammer-stroke that he is supposed to be preparing. All the news of the last few days suggests that Rumania has not only made good her retreat without serious loss, but is actually in a position to contemplate a renewed advance.

THE POPE AND SIR HENRY HOWARD.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

ROME, THURSDAY.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Pope accorded a farewell audience to Sir Henry Howard, retiring British Minister to the Vatican. His Holiness expressed his highest appreciation of Sir Henry's valuable services, which had led to closer relations between Great Britain and the Holy See. Later Sir Henry Howard visited Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, who expressed regret at the loss of His Excellency's co-operation in the work which aimed at protecting the interests of the Holy See, together with those of Great Britain.

NORTH FERMANAGH VACANCY.

LETTER FROM MR. FETHERSTONHAUGH.

Mr. William Eames, Secretary of the Fermanagh Unionist Association, has received the following letter, dated 17th October, from Mr. Godfrey Fetherstonhaugh, M.P. for North Fermanagh:—

"DEAR SIR,—As I previously intimated to you, I have sent in my application for the Chiltern Hundreds in order to vacate my seat for North Fermanagh. I would have done so much sooner but that I wished to be in the House of Commons when the responsibility for the Dardanelles adventure—which proved so fatal to those dear to me—came up for discussion. As the prospect of that seems a very deferred one I think it better to resign now. Through you I thank the electors of North Fermanagh, those who supported me, for the willing and hearty service, and those who voted against me for uniform courtesy, even in the heat of three contested elections."

It is understood that Mr. Fetherstonhaugh found that his Parliamentary duties interfered too much with his practice at the Bar. He has represented North Fermanagh since 1906.

NEW WRIT ISSUED.

In the House of Commons yesterday a new writ was issued for North Fermanagh, vacant by the resignation of Mr. Fetherstonhaugh.

RESULT OF WINCHESTER ELECTION.

The polling took place in Winchester yesterday for the election of a member of Parliament. The candidates were—Major Douglas Carnegie (Coalition), and Mr. H. C. Woods (Independent). The result was:—

Carnegie (C.)	1218
Woods (I.)	473
Coalition majority	745

DUBLIN LABOUR TROUBLES.

GASWORKERS' DISPUTE TO BE SUBMITTED TO ARBITRATION.

After a series of conferences yesterday, lasting from ten o'clock till eight o'clock, the directors of the Dublin Alliance and Consumers' Gas Company, and representatives of their employés in the producing and distributing departments agreed to submit the matters in dispute to arbitration, on the conditions mentioned yesterday, and the men who went on strike are to resume work to-day without prejudice. The parties are to invoke the assistance of the Board of Trade in respect of the arbitration, which it was agreed is to take place within a fortnight. Meetings of men in both producing and distributing departments were held last evening, and, having considered the suggestions of their representatives, endorsed them. At one period of the conference between the two parties a settlement of the whole affair was in prospect, only the question of the rate of payment for overtime and some minor matters being still in dispute. As the Gas Company were unwilling to allow those questions to go alone to arbitration, all matters will now be the subject of arbitration proceedings. The Arbitration Board, according to the agreement reached, is to consist of one representative of each side, with an independent chairman.

LAMPLIGHTERS' STRIKE.

Eleven lamplighters employed by the Dublin and Alliance Gas Consumers' Company in the townships of Blackrock, Kingstown, and Dalkey, went on strike last night for an increase in wages. The result was that until almost eight o'clock none of the streets in the townships was lighted, and much inconvenience was caused. Just before eight o'clock a number of clerks in the employment of the Gas Company turned out and lighted the lamps in the main road from Blackrock to Dalkey. All the side streets, however, were left in darkness.

RAILWAYMEN'S WAGES.

The Dublin and South-Eastern Railway Company are to double the amount of war bonus already paid to their employés as from October 1st. The existing bonuses are 1s. and 1s. 6d. a week, according to the rate of wages.

THE G.S. AND G.N. RAILWAYS.

We are asked to state that the additional war allowances recently granted to the employés of the Great Southern and Western and Great Northern (Ireland) Railway Companies were granted anterior to, and quite independent of, the visit to Ireland of the officials of the National Union of Railwaymen, with whom the directors of the two companies mentioned had no interview.

The Postmaster-General has been notified by the Post Office of the Union of South Africa that mails for Rhodesia, Katanga, and British Chinde despatched from this country on August 26th last were partially destroyed on the 13th ultimo by a fire which occurred on the train conveying the mails.

The Home Secretary has summoned a conference to be held at the Home Office on 23rd October for the purpose of considering the great increase in the number of offences committed by young persons. Representatives of Boys' and Girls' Brigades and Clubs have been invited to attend the conference.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE SOMME.

In a leading article The Times writes:—For reasons which are not yet clear the Germans continue to circulate imaginary reports of mighty battles on the Somme. They magnify minor and sectional encounters into terrific conflicts, in which their own troops are invariably represented as emerging successful from violent attacks. It must be presumed that these mendacious accounts are intended solely to influence public opinion in Germany. They cannot for a moment deceive neutrals. As a matter of fact, the unfavourable weather seems to be temporarily hindering the development of further operations north of the Somme, and it is not surprising, therefore, that Sir Douglas Haig's morning report yesterday was unusually brief. The really important news of the last two days is that the French forces on our immediate right have completed their conquest of the village of Sailly-Saillisel, and have driven the Germans from the ridges which lie beyond. The capture of Sailly-Saillisel exposes the German positions in the village of Le Transloy, which the British are now approaching.

THE IRISH OUTLOOK.

The Dublin Correspondent of the The Times writes:—I am not an optimist about Irish affairs, but I venture to think that, if any statesmanship remains in Irish politics, Mr. Duke's speech will help those who are still working for a political settlement in Ireland, and may help to avert the tragic disappearance of the Irish Divisions in France. To-day the Irish situation presents itself to thoughtful Irishmen as follows:—The country's political peace depends on her service in the war. She must be either persuaded or compelled to support her own soldiers in France. Wednesday's debate ought to help the process of persuasion. I think that Mr. Lloyd George, in his desire to pour oil into Mr. Redmond's wounds, exaggerated the recruiting blunders. It is true, however, that blunders were made, though Mr. Redmond cannot disclaim all responsibility for them, since he was a power at Dublin Castle during the heyday of Irish recruiting. If Mr. Lloyd George will throw his splendid enthusiasm into a new recruiting campaign, if he will devise new and improved methods, and if he can get Mr. Redmond and Mr. Devlin to help him, a considerable number of voluntary recruits may still be brought to the Colours. Lord Wimborne's 40,000 men will never be got before Christmas, but something may be done to save the national honour. If voluntary recruiting fails through the fault either of Mr. Redmond or of the Irish people, compulsory service will be inevitable as the necessary and fair price of a sound Irish settlement.

KING MANOEL.

The Times understands that King Manoel of Portugal is now devoting himself closely to hospital work, and especially to the new orthopædic treatment of disabled soldiers. Ever since his arrival in England, King Manoel has been closely identified with British interests, and since the outbreak of war has thrown himself wholeheartedly into the cause of the Allies, to the exclusion of all concern with politics in Portugal. He and Queen Amelie have long been associated with the work of the British Red Cross Society, and this has led naturally to the new and important work which he has now taken up.

IRELAND AND THE WAR.

OUTSPOKEN FRENCH COMMENT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, THURSDAY.

The Temps chooses for its leader to-day the subject of Ireland and the war. After tracing in a very impartial and well-informed manner the events leading up to the present situation, the journal concludes—Ireland is at a serious hour of its history. Its loyalty cannot be suspected, in spite of the deplorable Dublin affair. But this loyalty ought to manifest itself in acts. If Ireland objects that she has not received liberties to which she has a right, let her reflect that, the war once ended, she would lose all chance of obtaining them if it could be said that she did not take her fair share in the common effort. The Temps, with the reserve necessary when discussing the internal affairs of Allied countries, has always expressed its sympathy with the policy of Home Rule. It is for the good of this policy and for its future success that the friends of Ireland wish to-day that she should show clear-sightedness and decision. The surest way to compromise her claim to Home Rule, no matter what that claim may be at the present moment, is for her to present the appearance of being a slacker. Ireland will not commit this blunder. No, in civil war, but by confronting the enemy without, will she impose on all respect for her liberties.

RECRUITING IN IRELAND.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Sir JOHN LONSDALE was informed by Mr. Duke that the particulars of Irish recruiting were being prepared, and he would state next week what course the Government would take with regard to publishing them.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS AND GERMAN STUDENTS.

In the House of Commons yesterday, on the second reading of the Rhodes Estate Bill, the object of which is to annul German scholarships at Oxford under the scheme,

Mr. KING, in moving the rejection of the bill, complained that, though it vitally affected Oxford University, it had been introduced without consultation with the University authorities. The bill proposed absolutely to abolish an educational trust, instead of setting up another trust more applicable to present circumstances. He opposed the bill because he regarded it as a mean bill, which robbed education. There was no necessity for the bill, because the Rhodes Trustees had always the power to suspend any scholarship. A bill of this character ought not to have been brought forward during the heat of a great war. We ought not to rob the foreigner in order to aggrandise our own people.

Mr. EDWARD HARVEY seconded the rejection of the bill, and urged that the German scholarships should be suspended until after the conclusion of the war.

Lord HUGH CECIL said he did not think it was necessary to be over-tender of the interests of the German people at a time like this. The only question which need be considered was the merits of the system proposed to be set up in place of that which was knocked down. The proposal of the bill was that the scholarships should be transferred from German subjects to British subjects. He suggested that the better plan would be to leave the administration of the scholarships in the hands of the Rhodes Trustees. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. MacKINDER said that the promoters of the bill had absolutely no desire to injure education, and certainly were not open to the charge of meanness. The trustees would undertake that, when the Scholarship Fund was established, it should be sufficient to maintain the scholarships which exist at present, and, in addition, that it should be increased by a sum of money equal to the money that would have been paid to the German scholars from the beginning of the war until this scheme came into operation. They had four scholarships to dispose of, and it was proposed that they should be given to West Canada, the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, and Barbados.

Sir F. E. SMITH (Attorney-General) said that there was no legal difficulty of any kind involved in the bill.

The amendment was withdrawn, and the bill was read a second time.

Lord HUGH CECIL then moved—"That it be an instruction to the Committee on the Rhodes Estate Bill that they have power to amend Clause 4 of the bill, so as to make the scholarships substituted for those established pursuant to the German codicil available for students from such places, whether within or without the British Empire, as the trustees may from time to time in their discretion determine."

The instruction was agreed to.

The debate on the Consolidated Fund Bill was resumed.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE SOMME.

In a leading article The Times writes:—For reasons which are not yet clear the Germans continue to circulate imaginary reports of mighty battles on the Somme. They magnify minor and sectional encounters into terrific conflicts, in which their own troops are invariably represented as emerging successful from violent attacks. It must be presumed that these mendacious accounts are intended solely to influence public opinion in Germany. They cannot for a moment deceive neutrals. As a matter of fact, the unfavourable weather seems to be temporarily hindering the development of further operations north of the Somme, and it is not surprising, therefore, that Sir Douglas Haig's morning report yesterday was unusually brief. The really important news of the last two days is that the French forces on our immediate right have completed their conquest of the village of Sailly-Saillisel, and have driven the Germans from the ridges which lie beyond. The capture of Sailly-Saillisel exposes the German positions in the village of Le Transloy, which the British are now approaching.

THE IRISH OUTLOOK.

The Dublin Correspondent of the The Times writes:—I am not an optimist about Irish affairs, but I venture to think that, if any statesmanship remains in Irish politics, Mr. Duke's speech will help those who are still working for a political settlement in Ireland, and may help to avert the tragic disappearance of the Irish Divisions in France. To-day the Irish situation presents itself to thoughtful Irishmen as follows:—The country's political peace depends on her service in the war. She must be either persuaded or compelled to support her own soldiers in France. Wednesday's debate ought to help the process of persuasion. I think that Mr. Lloyd George, in his desire to pour oil into Mr. Redmond's wounds, exaggerated the recruiting blunders. It is true, however, that blunders were made, though Mr. Redmond cannot disclaim all responsibility for them, since he was a power at Dublin Castle during the heyday of Irish recruiting. If Mr. Lloyd George will throw his splendid enthusiasm into a new recruiting campaign, if he will devise new and improved methods, and if he can get Mr. Redmond and Mr. Devlin to help him, a considerable number of voluntary recruits may still be brought to the Colours. Lord Wimborne's 40,000 men will never be got before Christmas, but something may be done to save the national honour. If voluntary recruiting fails through the fault either of Mr. Redmond or of the Irish people, compulsory service will be inevitable as the necessary and fair price of a sound Irish settlement.

KING MANOEL.

The Times understands that King Manoel of Portugal is now devoting himself closely to hospital work, and especially to the new orthopædic treatment of disabled soldiers. Ever since his arrival in England, King Manoel has been closely identified with British interests, and since the outbreak of war has thrown himself wholeheartedly into the cause of the Allies, to the exclusion of all concern with politics in Portugal. He and Queen Amelie have long been associated with the work of the British Red Cross Society, and this has led naturally to the new and important work which he has now taken up.

IRELAND AND THE WAR.

OUTSPOKEN FRENCH COMMENT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, THURSDAY.

The Temps chooses for its leader to-day the subject of Ireland and the war. After tracing in a very impartial and well-informed manner the events leading up to the present situation, the journal concludes—Ireland is at a serious hour of its history. Its loyalty cannot be suspected, in spite of the deplorable Dublin affair. But this loyalty ought to manifest itself in acts. If Ireland objects that she has not received liberties to which she has a right, let her reflect that, the war once ended, she would lose all chance of obtaining them if it could be said that she did not take her fair share in the common effort. The Temps, with the reserve necessary when discussing the internal affairs of Allied countries, has always expressed its sympathy with the policy of Home Rule. It is for the good of this policy and for its future success that the friends of Ireland wish to-day that she should show clearsightedness and decision. The surest way to compromise her claim to Home Rule, no matter what that claim may be at the present moment, is for her to present the appearance of being a slacker. Ireland will not commit this blunder. Not in civil war, but by confronting the enemy without, will she impose on all respect for her liberties.

RECRUITING IN IRELAND.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Sir JOHN LONSDALE was informed by Mr. Duke that the particulars of Irish recruiting were being prepared, and he would state next week what course the Government would take with regard to publishing them.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS AND GERMAN STUDENTS.

In the House of Commons yesterday, on the second reading of the Rhodes Estate Bill, the object of which is to annul German scholarships at Oxford under the scheme,

Mr. KING, in moving the rejection of the bill, complained that, though it vitally affected Oxford University, it had been introduced without consultation with the University authorities. The bill proposed absolutely to abolish an educational trust, instead of setting up another trust more applicable to present circumstances. He opposed the bill because he regarded it as a mean bill, which robbed education. There was no necessity for the bill, because the Rhodes Trustees had always the power to suspend any scholarship. A bill of this character ought not to have been brought forward during the heat of a great war. We ought not to rob the foreigner in order to aggrandise our own people.

Mr. EDWARD HARVEY seconded the rejection of the bill, and urged that the German scholarships should be suspended until after the conclusion of the war.

Lord HUGH CECIL said he did not think it was necessary to be over-tender of the interests of the German people at a time like this. The only question which need be considered was the merits of the system proposed to be set up in place of that which was knocked down. The proposal of the bill was that the scholarships should be transferred from German subjects to British subjects. He suggested that the better plan would be to leave the administration of the scholarships in the hands of the Rhodes Trustees. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. MacKINDER said that the promoters of the bill had absolutely no desire to injure education, and certainly were not open to the charge of meanness. The trustees would undertake that, when the Scholarship Fund was established, it should be sufficient to maintain the scholarships which exist at present, and, in addition, that it should be increased by a sum of money equal to the money that would have been paid to the German scholars from the beginning of the war until this scheme came into operation. They had four scholarships to dispose of, and it was proposed that they should be given to West Canada, the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, and Barbados.

Sir F. E. SMITH (Attorney-General) said that there was no legal difficulty of any kind involved in the bill.

The amendment was withdrawn, and the bill was read a second time.

Lord HUGH CECIL then moved—"That it be an instruction to the Committee on the Rhodes Estate Bill that they have power to amend Clause 4 of the bill, so as to make the scholarships substituted for those established pursuant to the German codicil available for students from such places, whether within or without the British Empire, as the trustees may from time to time in their discretion determine."

The instruction was agreed to.

The debate on the Consolidated Fund Bill was resumed.

ANGLO-FRENCH PROGRESS.

BRITISH ADVANCE AT WARLENCOURT.

FRENCH CLOSING ON PERONNE.

Sir Douglas Haig reports a further advance of our line at the Butte de Warlencourt. An enemy counter-attack was stopped by our barrage.

Both the afternoon and night French communiqués report further progress between Biaches and La Maisonnette. Our Allies are steadily moving in the direction of Péronne.

The positions captured at Sailly Saillisel have been held and consolidated, notwithstanding German counter-attacks.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, THURSDAY, 11.15 A.M.

Rain fell heavily during the night.

Raiding parties entered the enemy's trenches near Loos and near Arras.

Otherwise there is nothing to report.

9.7 P.M.

Rain fell heavily all the morning.

We have slightly advanced our line at the Butte de Warlencourt, and an enemy counter-attack in that neighbourhood was stopped by our barrage.

Elsewhere there is nothing to report.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Yesterday afternoon's Paris communiqué:—

To the north of the Somme our troops organised during the night the village of Sailly-Saillisel and consolidated the positions captured. Enemy counter-attacks were broken by our fire. All our gains have been made good.

To the south of the Somme we made fresh progress between La Maisonnette and Biaches.

In Lorraine an enemy surprise attack on one of our trenches near Bures, south-east of Luneville, was repulsed.

Aviation.—Yesterday our aeroplanes, during the operations to the south of the Somme, attacked with machine guns enemy troops in the region of Biaches.

It is affirmed that Adjutant Dorme brought down on the 16th an aeroplane to the north of Péronne. This makes the number of machines brought down by him fourteen. Another aeroplane reported as having been hit on the same day fell to the ground near Beaulincourt.

Last night's communiqué:—

North of the Somme the Germans at 5 p.m. made a vain attempt to attack our lines north and east of Sailly-Saillisel. Our artillery fire broke up the waves of attack at the outset and inflicted considerable loss on the enemy.

South of the Somme we made fresh progress during the day between Biaches and La Maisonnette.

The total number of prisoners taken during yesterday's actions at present exceeds 350, including about ten officers.

Everywhere else the day was quiet.

THE SOMME BATTLE.

STEADY BRITISH PROGRESS

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The following telegraphic despatch, dated Thursday, 6.10 p.m., giving a summary of recent operations, has been received from General Headquarters in France:—

The summary of October 3rd brought the account of the operations on the Somme battlefield down to the last day of September. By that day we had advanced well beyond the crest of the main ridge, which runs from Thiepval to Sailly-Saillisel. From the line held the ground slopes gently to a shallow valley, which runs north-westward from near Sailly-Saillisel to about two thousand yards south of Bapaume, and then turns westward and joins the valley of the River Ancre at Miraumont. From the main Thiepval-Morval ridge a series of long, well-marked spurs run down to the valley described above. The most important of these is the hammer-headed spur immediately west of Flers, at the western extremity of which stands the tumulus called the Butte de Warlencourt. Lying across the main trend of the ground another well-marked spur runs from Morval north towards Thilloy, passing one thousand yards east of Gueudecourt. Behind this spur lies the Germans' fourth position, to get within assaulting distance of which it was necessary to carry Le Sars and these two spurs.

These were held as intermediate positions by the enemy, every advantage being taken of sunken roads, buildings, and the undulating nature of the country. On September 29th we carried D'Estremont Farm, three hundred yards south-west of Le Sars, and just north of the Albert-Bapaume road. On the afternoon of October 1st we advanced our line on a front of three thousand yards, occupying the buildings of Eaucourt l'Abbaye, fourteen hundred yards to the south-east of Le Sars. The struggle in this neighbourhood continued with great severity during the night, and early in the morning of October 2nd the enemy had regained a footing in the place. During the whole of next day and night the battle fluctuated, but by the following morning we had succeeded in finally clearing the buildings of the enemy.

On October 6th we won the mill north-west of Eaucourt l'Abbaye. On the afternoon of October 7th, in conjunction with the French on our right, we attacked on a wide front between the Albert-Bapaume road and Lesboeufs. We drove the enemy from Le Sars, carrying positions also to the east and west of that village after severe fighting. Between Gueudecourt and Lesboeufs, we forced our way forward from six hundred to a thousand yards. The period since that date has been occupied in winning ground between Le Sars and Lesboeufs, up the slopes of the low ridges already mentioned.

In the area between Thiepval and Le Sars we have made steady progress, and have gradually won a series of strong positions. The fighting has been heavy and prolonged. The enemy has resisted stubbornly until surrounded in one place after another, and large numbers of prisoners have fallen into our hands.

During this period we have had to repel repeated counter-attacks. Generally, these were stopped by our artillery and machine gun fire, but when they did succeed in forcing a way through the barrage, and reaching our lines, they were thrown back by our infantry rifle fire with heavy losses. On only one or two occasions did they manage to regain a footing in the trench, and then they were promptly driven out again with the bayonet.

Outside the Somme battlefield our troops have shown great activity in trench raids. Between Ypres and Loos over sixty raids have been carried out, in which we have secured many prisoners and inflicted heavy casualties. The captured during the fortnight bring the total prisoners in the Somme battlefield since the beginning of July to 28,198.

The weather during the course of the operations reviewed has been consistently unfavourable to aircraft. Heavy rains and strong south-westerly winds have lowered the visibility and have rendered their work most difficult. Yet, in spite of such adverse conditions our machines have made many valuable reconnaissances, and have repeatedly attacked with success the enemy lines of communications, ammunition dumps, and troops on the move.

A captured document emanating from a German Army Headquarters, in acknowledging the superiority of the British airmen, suggests methods of reorganisation whereby it is hoped that it will be possible, at least for some hours, to contest the supremacy in the air of the enemy.

Assisted by our aeroplanes our artillery has continued to play a notable part in the fighting. It has established and maintained clear superiority over that of the enemy. It has supported our infantry attacks, and has disorganised the enemy's arrangements behind his front lines and hindered the arrival of his reserves and supplies. It allows him no rest by day or night, and materially assists in that wearing down of his moral which is vital to success in battle.

On many occasions during the period under review the battle has resolved itself into isolated struggles. Both in these and in the main advances our infantry have shown their wonted endurance and devotion. Captured documents bear clear testimony to the effect of our continuous artillery fire and to the dash and discipline of our infantry attacks, and the quality of our men.

SERBIANS GAIN BIG SUCCESS.

BULGAR SECOND LINE PIERCED.

SERBS IN PURSUIT OF ENEMY.

A despatch from Salonika reports a Serbian victory, the Bulgars being repulsed on the left bank of the Cerna Reka and their second line pierced.

The Bulgarians were dispersed to the north, followed by the Serbians. Rich booty fell into the hands of the Serbians.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

SALONIKA, THURSDAY.

After desperate fighting, the Serbians yesterday succeeded in defeating the Bulgarians on the left bank of the Cerna Reka. The village of Brod, which was strongly fortified, the heights north of Brod, and the village of Veles Selo, fell into Serbian hands.

The Bulgarians were dispersed towards the north, pursued by the Serbs, whose booty consisted of three guns, four machine guns, a fairly large quantity of war material, and a good number of prisoners, including some officers. Serbian artillery fired the enemy's artillery and stores at Palok, which is situated on the bend of the Cerna Reka and north of Brod, while Serbian aeroplanes successfully bombed retreating enemy troops and transport.

On the remainder of the front there was also heavy fighting, resulting in favour of the Serbs.

The number of guns captured by the Serbs since September 14th is forty-three, which, however, does not include trench guns.

By the capture of Brod and Veles Selo the Serbs have pierced the enemy's second line in that part of the bend of the Cerna Reka, and are now confronted with the third and final line, situated on the western slopes of the Morihova Range, which brings them appreciably near Monastir.

Yesterday's British communiqué:—

Nothing of importance has occurred on the Struma front.

A strong attack was launched by the enemy on the night of the 17th against our right flank in the Doiran sector, which was repulsed.

Yesterday's French communiqué:—

In the region of Lake Doiran some Bulgar attacks during the night of the 17th and 18th against our positions to the north of Bodzeli were repulsed by our fire with serious losses to the enemy.

In the mountainous zone of Dobropule fighting continues with advantage to the Serbians, despite the enemy's fierce resistance.

On the left bank of the Cerna the Serbian troops captured in the course of a grenade combat the village of Brod in its entirety. About 50 prisoners remained in their hands.

On our left wing the artillery duel continues with violence.

The following Serbian communiqué was issued on Wednesday:—

On Tuesday Serbian troops entrusted with an attack on Sokol succeeded in occupying several positions on this mountain, and advanced appreciably towards the highest peak of Sokol. They continued their advance on Wednesday. In the direction of Monastir there is no change. On the rest of the front there is nothing of importance. It was noticed that the Bulgarians are bringing up reinforcements, and especially large numbers of trench mortars.

EAST AFRICA.

CLOSING ON REMNANTS OF ENEMY FORCES.

The Secretary of the War Office announces:—

With the dislodgment of the main enemy forces from the Uluguru Hills, as a result of Lieutenant-General Smuts' operations during the last days of September, the campaign entered upon a new phase. Since the initial encounters east and south of Kilimanjaro, in March, the German command had fought a prolonged series of rearguard actions on selected ground, and their main pre-occupation had been the evasion of our repeated encircling movements.

A more prolonged stand on, and immediately south of, the Central Railway was probably intended, but the energy of our pursuit resulted in the enemy being driven from the hills with considerable losses and a marked deterioration in moral. The bulk of his heavy artillery and ammunition, together with many depôts and stores of war material, was destroyed or abandoned. To gain time for rest and the reorganisation of his remaining forces, the enemy retreated into the area traversed by the Lower Rufiji River, and occupied positions extending from the neighbourhood of Kibambawe to the delta, with strong detachments on the Mgeta River, astride the Kissaki-Kibambawe road, facing General Smuts' main body, and numerous other posts north and south of the river, particularly in the Kitschi and Matumbi Hills, south of the delta. Within this area the majority of the outlying detachments were concentrated. The country between Mgetai and the Rufiji Rivers is traversed by only one practicable track, the Kissaki-Kibambawe road, above mentioned. All to the eastward of that track is an area of saltmarsh, in which drinking water is unobtainable in the present dry season. The entire Rufiji valley and delta is unhealthy and malarious in the highest degree, and is likely to become untenable after the advent of the "lesser rains" in October.

Accordingly, Lieutenant-General Smuts's recent operations have been framed with the object of driving into the Rufiji valley enemy posts established to the north and south, whilst according to the bulk of his forces the period of rest earned by an advance prolonged virtually continuously through seven months of an especially difficult and frequently almost unknown country.

A couple of minor columns have been engaged in clearing the country south-east of Dar-Es-Salaam, and north-west and west of Kilwa.

Meantime Belgian forces, converging on Tabora from the direction of Lake Victoria and Kigoma, had achieved a conspicuous success in the defeat between September 18th-22nd of a German force, under the command of Major-General Wahle, based on that centre. Survivors of that force were driven eastwards along the Central Railway, finally turning south, towards Neu Iringa, in an attempt to effect a junction with the main enemy concentration on the Rufiji. Simultaneously the Portuguese forces in Mozambique crossed the Rovuma River, and advanced, driving back minor German detachments opposed to them. The bulk of the remaining enemy forces are, therefore, confined in a limited area in the south-eastern portion of the Colony, of which all ports on the coast and all main lines of approach are held by our and Allied forces.

DASTARDLY MURDER OF BRITISH TROOPER.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies has received reports on the operations in the south-eastern districts of German East Africa, in which the following passage occurs—"On June 6 Colonel Roger attacked the enemy and put them to flight. Just before this action a most disgraceful incident occurred. A trooper of the 2nd South African Rifles, captured by the enemy, was tied to a gun wheel, beaten by a native, under orders of a European, and then shot by seven bullets. He died two days later, having been quite conscious, and able to make depositions. The officer in command of the enemy forces was Captain Count Falkenstein, and it is believed that we have as prisoners three Germans who were present, one of whom is probably guilty of the murder."

CUNARD STEAMER SUNK.

The Cunard steamer Alaunia has been sunk. The crew of the steamer have been landed.

The Alaunia, which was built at Greenock in 1913, had a tonnage of 13,400 gross. The passengers, about 180 in number, including a number of women and children, had been landed earlier.

The Alaunia was a ship of 13,000 tons, and was completed in 1913.

THE FIGHTING AT HALICZ.

RUSSIAN ENVELOPING MOVE.

FIGHTING IN THE CAUCASUS.

According to unofficial news from Petrograd, the Russians appear to be developing a great enveloping movement at Halicz. The fighting in this region continues with undiminished fury.

Yesterday's Petrograd communiqué:—

Western Front.—North of the village of Kisseline the Germans attacked our trenches after discharging gas and under cover of violent artillery fire, but were repulsed. In the region east of the town of Svinjuchi desperate fighting continues. We repulsed all enemy attacks.

North of Kuropatniki we yesterday captured one officer, thirty-five men, and a trench mortar. In the region of the village of Potutory, south of Brzezany, an enemy aeroplane landed, having been brought down by our artillery fire. The machine caught fire as it fell. We captured the aviators.

In the Dorna Vatra region we repulsed all the repeated attacks of the enemy.

In the Carpathians there was a violent snowstorm.

Caucasus Front.—Twenty versts north-west of Kalki, near Talmieh, our mountain Cossacks carried out a daring coup de main against a Turkish post, which they almost entirely wiped out, taking some prisoners. Ten versts south-east of Mush, near Marnik, one of our posts which was surrounded by a numerically superior enemy, bravely cut its way back to our trenches, suffering only insignificant losses.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

PETROGRAD, THURSDAY.

The battlefield of Kolshovtz is extending in a north-westerly direction along the Grula Lipa. The Russians have apparently initiated a movement with the object of enveloping Halicz from the north.

Fighting near Halicz is continuing with undiminished fury. The German forces there include the Third Guards Division, which has hitherto been held in reserve at Lemberg.

In Volhynia Czeriany, on the left bank of the Upper Stokhod, where there has been fighting, is the nearest point to Kovel, which the Russians have reached, being fifteen miles to the south-east of the town. The Russians have here made a dent in the enemy's defences. The enemy attack on Czeriany has doubtless been made with the object of relieving pressure between Vladimir Volynsky and Sokal, and especially north of Korysnitza. By threatening General Kaldin's right the enemy hoped to bring the operations of his strong centre to a standstill.

IRISH QUESTIONS.

MILITARY SERVICE ACT IN IRELAND.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. LUNDON asked the Attorney-General for Ireland whether instructions had been issued to Resident Magistrates in Ireland that in all cases under the Military Service Act local Justices are not to be allowed to adjudicate.

Mr. CAMPBELL (Attorney-General)—No such instructions have been issued. The question, so far as I know, has never arisen, except in one case, which is now actually sub judice, and, therefore, I must decline to say anything further about it.

Mr. LUNDON—Is it not a fact that, in the particular case to which the right hon. gentleman refers, instructions were issued to the Resident Magistrate a fortnight ago that he was entitled to try the case himself, and in consequence that the local Justices had not been able to act?

Mr. CAMPBELL—I have nothing to add. The case is sub judice, and I cannot refer to it any further.

Mr. DILLON—Does the right hon. gentleman know that this question has arisen and has been the subject of dispute in previous cases? Is it not the duty of the Executive Government to lay down for the guidance of magistrates what is the law in this matter, and not have fighting over it in judicial courts between the magistrates?

No reply was given.

Mr. LUNDON—Will the right hon. gentleman answer the question, whether instructions were issued to the local Resident Magistrate?

The SPEAKER—I must remind hon. members that this is a matter which is past and gone by.

Mr. HAZLETON—The Attorney-General (Mr. Campbell) has told us this case is pending. May I ask why, in a case that is pending, he has issued these instructions to the Resident Magistrates that the local Justices are not to be allowed to serve?

The SPEAKER said he had already pointed out that the matter is past and gone, and was not immediately urgent.

Mr. LUNDON—It is very urgent in Ireland. (Hear, hear.)

THE CONVICTION OF MR. McNEILL.

In answering a question of Mr. Lynch,

Mr. DUKE said that the proceedings in the courtsmartial on John McNeill were under the control of the Secretary of State for War. It had been pointed out to him that on May 18th last the Under Secretary of State stated that it was not proposed to lay on the table the proceedings of the courtsmartial in question.

Mr. DILLON—Has he had his attention called to the fact that, in reply to a request of mine, the Prime Minister promised to consider this matter some two months ago?

Mr. DUKE—I was not aware of that; but if a question is put either to the Prime Minister or to the Secretary for War I am sure effect will be given to the promise.

Mr. DEVLIN—May I ask whether, in view of the fact that Mr. McNeill exerted all his influence to prevent the rebellion in Ireland, he will consider the advisability of having him released?

Mr. DUKE—That is a matter of which, so far as I am aware, the Irish Executive has no control.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN POLICE.

In reply to Mr. Byrne, it was stated by Mr. Duke that the proposals submitted to the Treasury could not be published, as they had not yet been sanctioned. The date from which it was proposed that the new conditions should take effect was subject to the same restrictions. He expected, however, to be able without long delay to make a further answer.

CAPTAIN BOWEN-COLTHURST.

Mr. McKEAN was informed by Mr. Duke that Captain Bowen-Colthurst was found guilty, but insane, by the courtmartial which tried him, and that before he was committed to the Broadmoor Criminal Lunatic Asylum he was examined, and found insane, by Dr. Dawson, Inspector of Lunatic Asylums, at present serving in Ireland as Mental Specialist to the Forces in Ireland.

Mr. DEVLIN—May I ask whether the military superiors of Captain Colthurst are also insane, and are they still retained?

Mr. DUKE—I do not understand that there has been any trial or any action upon any matter of the kind.

Mr. BYRNE—Is it not a fact that Captain Colthurst was found unfit to control his section in the Army on the battlefields of France when fighting the Huns; and why was he allowed to run loose among unarmed citizens in Dublin?

Mr. DUKE—He was never under the control of the Irish Executive. He was at all times a military officer, and, no doubt, if a question is addressed to the Secretary for War it will be answered by him.

Mr. BYRNE—Was he under Major Price, or not?

Mr. DUKE—I have not the least idea.

Mr. FLAVIN—Can he say at what particular moment he became insane?

No answer was given.

IRISH EGGS.

Mr. T. W. RUSSELL, in answer to Mr. Donovan, said that a communication had been received by the Department from the Provision Trade Section of the London Chamber of Commerce in regard to claims in respect of damage to consignments of Irish eggs. The complaints received by the Department go to show that considerable damage to consignments of Irish eggs had taken place. The Department had no knowledge as to the facts in regard to the particular consignment referred to. The whole question as to the packing and conveyance of Irish eggs was engaging the special attention of the Department.

Messrs. W. and C. T. Jones Steamship Co., Ltd., Cardiff, have acquired the three steamers of the Orpheus Shipping Company, Sutherland, of which Messrs. Jameson, Taylor, and Company, are managing owners. The vessels are the Mozart, the Beethoven, and the Orpheus, of 22,000 tons, total deadweight capacity. The purchase price is understood to have been about £250,000.

IRISH HARVEST.

POSITION OF THE POTATO CROP.

YIELD ONE-HALF LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

The Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, in its mid-October report on the state of the crops in Ireland, which was issued last night, says:—

The late harvest turned out unfavourable. September was a broken month, and, though there were occasional good days unsettled conditions interfered greatly with work at the corn crops. The first two weeks of October were also wet, and in late districts fields of oats still in stook or in hand stacks are suffering severely. Threshing of wheat and barley is being pushed on with when conditions permit. Most of the farm hands are engaged at this work, and, up to the present, no start has been made to raise the potato crop. The prolonged damp, besides causing damage to the corn crops at every stage of handling, has also been injurious to potato prospects, and in many cases has rendered the clearing of old meadows impossible. Low-lying districts have suffered from flooding, and the grain and potato crops in such situations have been greatly injured.

POTATOES.

Potatoes are turning out a very medium crop of tubers, with a large proportion small and diseased. Lateness of planting, combined with early outbreak of blight, allowed too little time for growth, and owing to this cause, except where two sprayings were given, yields are very poor. The crop is best on light, dry soils early planted, but in general it is disappointing. Most estimates place the yield at from one-third to one-half less than last year. The Up-to-Date variety was cut off early by disease and is stated to have failed badly; strongly resistant varieties, such as Shamrock, Arran Chief, and Leinster Wonder have grown out better, and are expected to yield satisfactorily. The benefits from sprouting seed and spraying thoroughly have been very marked this season, and fields so treated, it is believed, will dig out a satisfactory crop of sound, full-sized tubers.

OTHER ROOT CROPS.

Other root crops are of average promise, but want a month's dry warm weather to cause the bulbs to swell properly. Turnips sown so late as the second week in June are now looking fine; later patches cannot be near an average. Much damage was done to the crop this season by the caterpillars of the cabbage butterfly, and also by green fly; mildew was also severe at one stage. The prolonged wet has caused many fields to become very foul with weeds. Mangels are coming on satisfactorily, and the yield may yet reach average, especially on the drier soils.

CEREAL CROPS.

Threshing of the wheat crop has now become general, though some fields are still out in stook and greatly damaged. The extreme mildness and humidity caused a certain amount of sprouting, and a soft sample of grain has resulted. Generally, the crop gave a good average yield of fair quality grain. Opening prices range from 33s. to 35s. per barrel (20 stones). The later part of the oat crop got much damage from the wet, and in many backward districts of the Northern counties a good number of fields still remain to be cleared. Reports regarding yields are variable. In the Southern counties, where early sowing was possible, the yield is stated to be a full average of good, well-coloured grain; over the rest of the country yields are described as extremely poor, the grain being very light and badly filled. In some districts it is estimated the produce will be little more than half of that obtained last season. The deficiency in yield is ascribed to the fact that the crop ripened too fast, and the grain had not time to fill out properly. Some sales have already taken place at 16s. per barrel in Midland markets and at 11s. per cwt. at Northern centres. Barley has given a satisfactory yield, and the quality of the grain is good. Threshing is well advanced in most counties. Current prices are generally about 27s. or 28s. per barrel (16 stones), but in some places up to 32s. is being paid for good samples. Rye is stated to have done fairly well, and though the crop will not be average as regards grain, the straw generally is good.

FLAX.

Handling of the flax crop has been very tedious. In some of the later districts steeping was still being done at October 7, and even then a few fields remained to be pulled. Most of the crop is in stack or in store, and only a small quantity has as yet been scutched. The bulk of straw has turned out better than was expected. It is anticipated yields will be considerably below last year, and that the quality will not be quite so good. The wet season encouraged an extra growth of weeds through flax, and the yield from many such fields cannot be near average.

The bulk of straw for fodder purposes is lighter than usual. The oat crop on land after manure was very short and thin.

THE EXPORTATION OF IRISH POTATOES.

STATEMENT BY MR. RUSSELL.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Captain DONELAN asked the Vice-President of the Department of Agriculture (Ireland) whether he was aware that a large proportion of this year's potato crop in Ireland was diseased and unfit for food, and whether, in view of the scarcity of other articles of food and the prospect of a still greater scarcity in the spring, he would recommend that immediate steps be taken to prohibit the exportation of potatoes from Ireland.

Mr. RUSSELL—The condition of the potato crop in Ireland, whilst giving rise to anxiety, does not appear to warrant the use of the term "failure" in the question. The mid-October reports show that generally speaking, the yield is poor and disappointing. On some soils where disease-resisting varieties were planted, and where also spraying was effectively done, the crop is described as satisfactory, but it cannot be overlooked that the broken weather of September and its low temperature, as well as the excessive rainfall since October set in, must have an injurious effect upon the final crop return. The period of lifting the potatoes has now arrived, and until that process has gone further it is impossible to say with anything like accuracy what the outlook really is. In regard to export, I would point out to the hon. gentleman that the Department have no power to prohibit the export of sound potatoes, and that, after all, with a yield last year of 3,716,463 tons, there was only a balance of 250,000 tons available for export without restricting supplies in human consumption and stock-feeding. I must ask the hon. gentleman to be satisfied with the assurance that the Department are fully aware of the grave importance of the matter, and that the position is being carefully watched and reported upon in every district of the country.

Mr. KILBRIDE—Can he give us the names of the different varieties that he says are diseased?

Mr. RUSSELL—I should like notice of that. I could give him one that does not resist disease; the Up-to-Dates have given way all over Ireland.

Captain DONELAN—In view of the fact that potatoes are the staple food of the Irish people, will the right hon. gentleman recommend that their exportation from Ireland shall, at least, be suspended pending further investigation as to the extent of the disease? It is really a very serious matter.

Mr. RUSSELL—I have endeavoured to convey that the Department have fully realised the gravity of the case, but we cannot proceed without the fullest information. We are daily at work getting that. I am in communication with the Chief Secretary on the matter. He was consulted this morning before this answer was prepared, and I think it meets the case at present.

Mr. O'SHAUGHNESSY—Is he aware that the price of potatoes in the local markets at home is twice what it was last year at this time?

Mr. RUSSELL—I am aware of that.

Mr. FLAVIN—Is he aware of his own personal knowledge that during the whole of last summer sulphate of copper, the principal ingredient used in spraying, was so scarce that farmers could not get it?

Mr. RUSSELL—Yes; but in the poorest part of Ireland, the West, the spraying was exceedingly well done.

THE ALLIES AND RUMANIA.

Major HUNT, in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Prime Minister whether everything possible would be done to save Rumania from the fate of Serbia.

Mr. BONAR LAW, who replied, said that the situation in Rumania had been for some time the subject of careful and anxious consideration both by ourselves and our Allies. Everything possible was being done.

Sir EDWARD CARSON asked when the House could expect some information about Rumania?

Mr. BONAR LAW—As soon as it is possible to make any statement the Government will be glad to make it.

BARON BURIAN IN BERLIN.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, THURSDAY.

According to a Vienna telegram, Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, stayed yesterday at the German Headquarters, where he had a conference with Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor.

PARLIAMENT.

PROPOSED LONG TERM LOAN.

GREAT SALE OF EXCHEQUER BONDS.

STATEMENT BY MR. M'KENNA.

MR. LYNCH AND GREECE.

On the motion for the second reading of the Consolidated Fund (No. 5) Bill in the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Charles Henry and Sir Frederick Banbury criticised the Government's financial policy, urging that Treasury bills were issued at too high a rate; that they did not appeal to investors, and that a long term Loan would be preferable.

Mr. McKenna pointed out that, in view of the large amounts of money the State had to borrow, the old arguments in regard to rates of interest did not apply. When the time came he had no doubt that the Loan he would recommend to the House would be of sufficient magnitude to dispel all the fears that had been expressed. With regard to the six per cent. Exchequer Bonds, Sir Frederick Banbury would, perhaps, be surprised to learn that in the course of a fortnight this security had sold to the extent of £36,000,000. The only alternative was the issue of a long loan. It was his intention to ask Parliament to issue a long loan at the proper time and season.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Thursday.

The SPEAKER took the chair at 2.45.

NEXT WEEK'S BUSINESS.

Mr. BONAR LAW announced the following business for next week:—Tuesday—Discussion of the report of the Public Accounts Committee, and the Committee stage of the Larceny Bill; Wednesday—The Report stage of the Acquisition of Land Bill; Thursday—Discussion on the Liquor Control Board.

THE REGISTRATION BILL.

Replying to Sir Edward Carson,

Mr. BONAR LAW said that the Registration Bill is under consideration.

DEPENDENTS OF MESOPOTAMIAN FORCE.

Mr. HAYES FISHER informed Mr. Pringle that, by a legal decision, the widows and dependents of troops of the Mesopotamian force, not paid out of the public funds of the United Kingdom, would not be entitled to allowances from the Statutory Committee.

Sir EDWARD CARSON—Will the right hon. gentleman see that immediate provision is made for the widows and children of these men?

Mr. HAYES FISHER said he would write to the Secretary for India and the head of the Government on the subject.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

Lord ROBERT CECIL informed Mr. Lynch that he had nothing to say as to the intention of the Government to recognise the Provisional Government established by M. Venezelos. The question was one for agreement between the Allied Powers, and not one in which His Majesty's Government could take individual action.

Mr. LYNCH expressed dissatisfaction with the reply, and said that he would ask leave to move the adjournment of the House in consequence.

The SPEAKER, however, did not consider the matter one of urgent public importance.

PRINCE GEORGE OF GREECE.

Sir E. CORNWALL asked the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs if he could make a statement as to the nature and purpose of the visit of Prince George of Greece to this country, and as to his interview with the Foreign Secretary.

Lord ROBERT CECIL—The answer is in the negative. The visit was of a private character, and Prince George was entertained here and in Paris in that capacity.

Sir EDWIN CORNWALL—Why was it announced that he visited the Foreign Office?

Lord ROBERT CECIL—Because of the enterprise of the Press.

CONSOLIDATED FUND BILL.

On the motion for the third reading of the Consolidated Fund (No. 5) Bill,

Sir CHARLES HENRY raised the question of the policy of the Treasury in raising money by the issue of Treasury bills, which, he said, were now piling up at the rate of £1,000,000 per month. His objection to these bills was that we were paying an extravagant rate of interest. He was convinced that the credit of the country was as sound as ever it was, and that there was no necessity to pay this high rate of interest for the money required to finance the war. He admitted that by the issue of these short-dated bills the Chancellor of the Exchequer had been able to tide over his financial requirements, but this was not a matter for surprise in view of the high rate of interest. If, when the war started, we had offered the soldiers a largely increased rate of pay, we should have had no difficulty in getting all the men we required. He submitted that the issue of these short-dated Treasury bills could not but have a detrimental effect upon the financial position of the country, by lowering our financial prestige. The money required could be raised with greater facility by the issue of a long-term Loan. The House was entitled to know whether the policy of the Chancellor of the Exchequer met with the full approval of the financial advisers of the Treasury.

Sir THOMAS WHITTAKER thought it would be a great mistake for the Chancellor of the Exchequer to reduce the rate of interest on short-dated securities. The way in which the Chancellor had raised the thousands of millions he had raised was a matter for great congratulation in his opinion.

Sir FREDERICK BANBURY said he strongly objected to three-year Exchequer Bonds, because, in the first place, he thought the rate of interest was too high, and, secondly, because such bonds did not appeal to anyone. He regarded with great apprehension the present financial policy of the Government.

THE CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER.

Mr. McKENNA said it was of the first importance that the House should be satisfied that all proper steps were being taken in order to raise the necessary funds to meet our needs. The House had shown a great example of courage and endurance in facing a financial strain. The amount of money which the State had to borrow was out of all proportion to any past borrowings, and the old arguments in regard to rates of interest did not apply. Nobody could conceive for a moment that the Treasury would pay more money than they had got to pay. He had to see that we had always the means to pay for our Army and Navy, and to give the assistance which we had promised to our Allies, and, therefore, he had to make sure of getting the money. Sir C. Henry had complained of the high rate of discount on Treasury Bills, on the ground that they would be largely held abroad. But he should not feel justified, with the present outlook, in insisting upon any change being imposed with regard to our supplies. He felt also that it was our duty to our Allies to consider their needs and necessities to the full. When the time came he had no doubt that the loan which he should feel it his duty to recommend to the House would be of sufficient magnitude to dispel all the fears that had been expressed. In regard to the advice on which the Treasury were acting, of course they never had the unanimous advice of every high financial expert, because the high financial authorities did not agree. But he could say with confidence that the Treasury had the advice, and followed the advice, of the bulk of the best financial opinion. The right hon. baronet had said that the 6 per cent. Exchequer Bonds appealed to no one. But he would, perhaps, be surprised to learn that in the course of a fortnight this security, which appealed to no one, had sold to the extent of £36,000,000. There would have been no chance of success at a less rate of interest. The only alternative was the issue of a long loan. The right hon. baronet had laid it down as a maxim that it was not the best time to issue a loan when there was competition for money, and he must be aware that at this period of the year the Bank rate was almost invariably raised.

A LONG LOAN.

It was his intention to ask Parliament to authorise the issue of a long loan at the proper time and season, but the Treasury ought not to be rushed into issuing such a loan against their judgment. It should not be forgotten that at this period of the year the Treasury did not get the full advantage of the revenue, and that was a factor which had always to be borne in consideration. The first nine months of the year yielded an average revenue of £7,000,000 a week, whilst they had budgeted for, and expected to obtain, about £500,000,000. That meant that about £130,000,000 would have to come in during the last three months of the year, and to this extent his reliance would have to be placed upon Treasury Bills, or upon any other form of borrowing. The country had borne the burden of the war up to the present, and he had little doubt it would be able to bear the burden as long as the war lasted. Expenditure, unfortunately, had not gone down, and there was an increase in the case of munitions and loans to Allies. This was a war of munitions, and one of our main objects in offering these securities to the country was to get them held abroad. At the present moment he supposed it was not too much to say that we had to find two millions sterling a working day for the United States, and that meant a prodigious number of dollars to find every six days. It would have been believed that the task would be impossible had it not been realised. It was being done now, and there were no reasons to suppose that it would not continue to be done. But the Government must have their hands free, and they must not be told at every moment that they were paying too high a rate of interest.

MR. LYNCH REPROVED.

Mr. LYNCH called upon the Government to take energetic action in Greece, and asked if there had been any intervention by the Court to save the Throne of one of their relatives.

The DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Those remarks seem to be reflecting on the Sovereign, and that is not in order. I must, therefore, ask the hon. member not to continue in that vein.

Mr. LYNCH said he would leave the country to judge.

Lord ROBERT CECIL said it would be impossible for any Minister to discuss publicly what might be said to Greece at the present time. The strategy of the Allies in the Balkans had been guided exclusively by military considerations, and as to any suggestion that any person not strictly in the Government had used influence to deflect the Allied policy from the principles of sound strategy, it was utterly baseless, and unworthy of a member of that House. (Hear, hear.)

The bill was read a third time, and

The House adjourned at 12.48.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

FATE OF THE BREMEN.

GERMANS ADMIT HER LOSS.

A Reuter's New York message says—The Washington correspondent of the Associated Press telegraphs that the loss of the commercial submarine Bremen was virtually admitted to-day by members of the German diplomatic body especially acquainted with the movements of the vessel.

IRISH CHANGES FORESHADOWED.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle writes—An impression prevails that changes in method are imminent in Ireland, possibly also in personnel. The shadow of conscription for Ireland is receding. Mr. Lloyd George evidently does not anticipate a large flow of Irish recruits, except as the fruit of a settlement of the Home Rule problem. The large number of Liberals (30) who supported Mr. Redmond's motion of censure caused surprise. They included men like Mr. Burns, Sir John Barlow, Sir H. Dalziel, Mr. Gordon Harvey, Sir Ernest Lamb, Sir John McCallum, Sir Richard Winfrey, and Sir George Pollard. About 40 Liberals abstained from voting. The 106 members who voted in the minority included 60 Nationalists, 30 Liberals, and 16 Labour members.

The Lobby Correspondent of the Daily News asserts that the Government are now uneasy and are by no means satisfied with the course of Wednesday's debate. Rightly or wrongly, Ministers felt unwilling to announce a change in the present system of government in Ireland at the moment when they were being so roundly taken to task by the Nationalist Party. But there is reason for saying that changes are none the less in contemplation, including a change in the military command. One significant feature in the situation is that the personal relations between Ulster Unionists and Irish Nationalists continue to be friendly, and views were exchanged yesterday. The desirability of a recruiting campaign is, of course, urged in some quarters, though the unsettled feeling in Ireland does not promise full response at the moment. A friendly settlement of the constitutional question seems remote, but may be privately discussed between Irishmen of different sections.

GENERAL McCALMONT AND SINN FEIN.

General Sir Hugh McCalmont, writing in the Daily Mail, says—If the Sinn Feiners, in their numbers, are not opposed to British government, what are they? I don't suppose anyone will have the assurance to say that they have proved themselves law-abiding citizens this summer. Observations on martial law being the cause of continual distress are absolutely opposed to all the facts as they are.

RUMANIANS STAND FIRM.

Yesterday's Bukharest communiqué:—

North and North-Western Front—At Tolgyes and Bicoz there were artillery duels. One of our detachments crossing the mountains surprised the enemy troops, and attacked them with the bayonet, destroying twelve of their guns with their limbers, and killing the horses. The detachment then withdrew, carrying off 600 prisoners.

A detachment attacking the Goloasci Ridge, in the Trous Valley, surprised the enemy, and captured 300 prisoners and a number of machine guns.

In Uzal Valley we repulsed enemy attacks. In the Oituz Valley fighting continues with extreme violence. In the Vrancea there were minor frontier actions. At Tablabutzi there were light engagements. In the Buzeu Valley there were artillery actions. At Bratocea and Predelus the situation is unchanged.

At Predeal we drove back beyond the frontier small enemy units, which were advancing towards Clabucu Tultaurului. In the Bran Pass we gained ground. In the direction of Dragoslauele small enemy columns which had advanced towards the Soar Pass were stopped. On the rest of the front the situation is unchanged. On the southern and south-western front the situation is unchanged.

THE FIGHT FOR SAILLY-SAILLISEL.

The final capture of Sailly-Saillisel was a very fine feat of arms accomplished by General Favolles' Army, says the Daily Telegraph's Own Correspondent in Paris. The first houses of the village were taken on Sunday night from three sides. After that, the remainder of the village was conquered foot by foot. Each house had been turned into a miniature fortress bristling with about 150 machine guns, and all the houses had to be stormed one by one. The enemy counter-attacked over and over again furiously with gas and liquid fire.

OUTRAGE ON BRUSSELS BANKS.

From a trustworthy source, says the Amsterdam Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, I learn that the German military authority in Brussels ordered the bankers of the city to send to them lists of their depositors, and the amounts standing in their names, whether in securities or coin. The directors of the banks refused unanimously to comply with this request, but on the day of the expiration of the time limit allowed by the military each bank was visited by a German officer and four soldiers, who took by force the required names.

KING GEORGE AND THE TSAR.

A Petrograd telegram of Thursday's date says—The Tsar received Sir George Buchanan, British Ambassador, at the Imperial Headquarters to-day, when the Ambassador presented the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath to His Majesty as Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Navy. Addressing His Majesty, Sir George Buchanan said—In presenting Your Majesty last February with the baton of a British Field-Marshal the King desired to mark his warm feelings of admiration for Your Majesty's heroic armies, and in now asking Your Majesty to accept this high military decoration His Majesty wishes more especially to express his lively appreciation of the services rendered by Your Majesty's Navy. In spite of the great numerical superiority of the German Fleet, Your Majesty's Baltic Fleet has repulsed with loss all its attacks on Riga, and has carried out successful raids, and barred its entrance to the Gulf of Finland. Like the British Fleet in the North Sea, Your Majesty's Fleet has kept watch and ward in the Baltic, and though still unable to fight in line, the two fleets are acting together in close co-operation. British submarines, moreover, have penetrated into the Baltic, where they are proud to fight under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief of Your Majesty's naval forces in those waters. In the Black Sea the Turkish Fleet, reinforced by the Goeben and Breslau, after several unsuccessful encounters with Your Majesty's ships, have been driven into the Bosphorus. In recognition of these services, and as a tribute of his admiration of the Russian Navy, the King has commanded me to present to Your Majesty, as Commander-in-Chief of Your Majesty's land and sea forces, the insignia of Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Military Division.

GREEK CRISIS.

SITUATION IMPROVED.

THE KING AND THE ALLIES' DEMANDS.

Telegrams from Athens state that the position there is somewhat more hopeful, and Court circles appear to be satisfied with Sir Francis Elliot's interview with the King in regard to the withdrawal of Greek troops from Larissa. The King is said to be disposed to meet every demand of the Allies.

It is announced from Salonika that the Ministry of National Defence has been definitely formed.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

ATHENS, WEDNESDAY.

The position is somewhat more hopeful to-day, and Court circles seem to be satisfied with Sir Francis Elliot's interview with the King yesterday, the subject of which was, as telegraphed, the withdrawal of Greek troops from Larissa, to which the King apparently agrees. Count Mercatti conveyed the messages to the King and Sir Francis Elliot this morning. It seems that the King is disposed to meet every demand, with a view to avoid further humiliation. Admiral Du Fournet visited the Premier and the Foreign Minister this morning, and said he was hopeful of an improvement in the situation.

Last night's incidents have been followed by most severe military measures to prevent any repetition. Unhappily, Greek bluejackets employed on police work are labouring under the impression that the Navy has been unjustly treated.

THE MINISTRY OF NATIONAL DEFENCE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

SALONIKA, THURSDAY.

The Ministry of National Defence has been definitely constituted as follows:—War, M. Zembrakakis; Foreign Affairs, M. Politis; Justice, M. Dingas; Finance, M. Negropoutes; Interior, M. Sofoulis; Public Instruction, M. Averof; National Economy, M. Coutoupis; Roads and Communications, M. Kasavetis; Supplies, M. Embiricos; Relief of Families, Mobilised Troops, and Refugees, M. Simos; Domains, M. Michalacopoulos. The Ministers will be officially known as advisers to the Triumvirate. The Spanish and United States Consuls, acknowledging the receipt of M. Politis's circular, expressed, it is stated, their cordial congratulations and sincere wishes for the continuation of those cordial relations with the new Government which existed with the previous Administration.

SALONIKA, WEDNESDAY.

M. Politis, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Provisional Government, has notified the Allied military commanders and the Consular body of his assumption of office. In his letter to General Sarrail, M. Politis says that, knowing the good dispositions which General Sarrail would testify towards the Provisional Government, he (M. Politis) is anxious to furnish an assurance that he had at heart the further strengthening of the ties established for the great and good work of national defence, which aims principally at sincere co-operation with the Allied Armies.

Writing to the Serbian Consul-General, M. Politis states that one of the chief objects of the national defence consists in satisfying the obligations of the Greek Alliance with the noble and valorous Serbian nation.

The Provisional Government has taken possession of the Royal residence at Salonika, where the Triumvirate is now installed. A naval division, composed of the cruiser Hydra and three torpedo boats, has been formed here.

ITALIANS REPULSE MANY ATTACKS.

Yesterday's Italian communiqué:—

On Mount Pasubio almost incessant attacks and counter-attacks took place, all preceded and supported by extremely violent bombardments. Yesterday morning the enemy succeeded in breaking into the redoubt on the tooth of Pasubio, but were promptly driven out after a hand-to-hand struggle. About one hundred prisoners, including nine officers, one gun, and one four-inch howitzer were taken as a result of yesterday's fighting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

RECRUITING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Anyone who travels through Ireland and keeps his eyes open must admit that there are shirkers from England in our midst, but whether there are thousands of them or tens of thousands, as some correspondents would have us believe, is purely a matter of conjecture. From personal experience and observation I find that these contemptible specimens of humanity belong to three classes. The first are Englishmen of a low type, who would probably, owing to their previous mode of living, be useless as soldiers. They are to be found at the many race meetings and sporting fixtures of all sorts, which are of almost daily occurrence, in this, to them, "the one and only bright spot" in the United Kingdom. They should be rounded up, and sent back to the places whence they came. The second class of "Englishmen" are young Jews of foreign extraction, who have scurried away from big English cities to more congenial surroundings among their compatriots and co-religionists in this country. They may be seen travelling through the country as pedlars, or in hiding in our cities. The third and most numerous class of "English shirkers" are natives of this country, who, after long residence, with work and wages, in the land of the hated Saxon, have acquired an English accent, and have "come back to Erin," to seize the positions vacated by their noble fellow-countrymen who are now fighting and dying in France and Macedonia. These "English" Irish slackers are filling up jobs in shops, offices, factories, and farms. They, too, should be rounded up, and compelled either to go back to England (or Scotland) or to join an Irish regiment.—Yours, etc.,

"THOMAS ATKINS."

Dublin, October 19th, 1916.

THE DUBLIN BAKERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It seems to me that this is a matter in which the consumers of bread ought to have an influential voice. The masters' plea is that the public must have fresh, hot bread; but surely the public do not want this at the expense of the workman's health? If it were brought home to the consumer that this indulgence is not only injurious to the workman but also to himself, I have every confidence that his humanity and regard for his own health would lead him to declare, "No more night-work." Might I respectfully suggest to the medical profession that this is a question on which they should speak out authoritatively?

There is another point in dispute—namely, the recognition of the workmen's trade union. At this time of day it is amazing that an enlightened body of men, such as the master bakers undoubtedly are, should be so far behind the times. I doubt if in any other important industry recognition is not the rule.—Yours, etc.,

E. S. GLANVILLE.

HOUSING AND ALLOTMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—If there is substantial foundation for the rumour current in the Dublin Press that a loan from New York to enable the Corporation to build houses for the workers of Dublin is in contemplation, it is the best of news to all who care for the welfare of the city, and it is to be hoped that nothing will be allowed to interfere with a scheme so entirely welcome at this time. The problem is so great and so urgent that every possible facility is needed if it is to be adequately dealt with, and if the Local Government Board and the English Government see in this American scheme criticism of their neglect, may it incite them to do their part at the eleventh hour.

The news of this proposed loan has, however, another aspect that deserves consideration, for in the same paragraph announcing it details were given of the localities where housing would at once be undertaken, and the largest group of allotments and others, flourishing under the vacant land cultivation scheme, were, as it were, swept away with the sweep of a pen. This has caused very general uneasiness among the men and women who have worked early and late during the last six or nine months to grow food for their families; but it is obvious that the first housing schemes must be on open spaces, as it is not possible to demolish more slums until houses are ready for the displaced occupants to enter.

The number of workers anxiously seeking the help of allotments is enormously increased this autumn by the famine prices and the sight of the success of the pioneers of the movement, who, at a moderate computation, are producing food at the rate of £100 per acre on their one-eighth of an acre plots. They tell me that, if the acreage of the Phoenix Park were available, there would be applicants for it all.

In view, then, of the necessity for increased food production, and the success of allotment schemes where the worker gets the full reward of his labours, it is necessary to press without delay for an Allotment Act for Ireland. It is urgent that the local authorities should have power to obtain land as soon as possible, and rent it to the workers in time for them to crop it in the early months of the coming year. With the very serious outlook confronting us at the close of the war, it is impossible to conceive that the Government could raise any difficulties in extending to Ireland facilities that Great Britain has had for many years. Let us see that out of the present state of starvation in the Irish cities and towns we can at least procure the opportunities for self-help which the workers of England and Scotland are using to such advantage, and which were long since established in France, Germany, and other Continental countries. When this is accomplished, Dublin will be in a position to welcome as it deserves the American scheme, without uneasiness.

To get the required Act passed, it will be necessary that it should be an "agreed" bill. I do not think, under the present circumstances, that anyone in Ireland could be found to come forward in opposition to a measure so manifestly just and necessary. To make this sure, however, it will be well if all those who see the importance and urgency of the question will write to the members of Parliament for their division, asking their support for an Allotment Act for Ireland. I hope the people of Belfast will help us in asking all members of Parliament from Ireland to make a unanimous appeal to the Government, because, although by the generous enthusiasm of a citizen, they have got much without an Act, there are many towns where such happy circumstances do not exist, and where some of the workers and their families now languish for want of food, which they only need the opportunity to cultivate.

The Vacant Land Cultivation Society is prepared to send experts free of charge to advise and help in any neighbourhood where an effort is being made to secure land by agreement for allotment, and a leaflet can be obtained at the office, 20 Kildare street, Dublin, showing how best to promote such an effort. The Society will be grateful for financial support either in the form of subscriptions, or to assist it in making short loans to the plot-holders' committees to enable them to undertake initial expenditure, to be repaid when the return comes in. We are reminded that the Development Fund is to help local effort. It is curiously difficult for people to realise that to increase food production at present is war work next in importance to the work of the Red Cross.

I have just received a copy of Mr. Field's recent question and of the Chief Secretary's answer:—

Mr. FIELD asked the Chief Secretary for Ireland whether he is aware that the facilities for acquiring land in Ireland do not include the means of obtaining land in the immediate neighbourhood of cities, towns, and villages; and whether he will make further inquiry and place similar opportunities for land cultivation by allotments to urban dwellers in Ireland as are already in successful operation in England.

Mr. DUKE—The hon. member was informed, in answer to his question of the 14th March last, that the extension to Ireland of the powers contained in the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, for the provision of allotments by urban authorities is not practicable. Under that Act allotment schemes are intended to be carried out without loss to the local authorities; and, in order to satisfy this requirement in the case of Irish towns, it would be necessary to let land at a figure which would be beyond the means of the labouring classes.

We are aware from our own experience that Mr. Duke is wrongly informed as to the price at which land is to be obtained and the figure which the workers are willing to pay for it in the neighbourhood of towns. They are ready to pay, and are now paying to us, the full agricultural value of the land, and they should not be asked to pay either more or less. I am advised that the Allotment Act in force in England prior to the passing of the Small Holdings and Allotment Act, 1908, could be easily adapted to Irish requirements. There will be no difficulty in having a suitable bill drafted once the necessity for it is conceded. An inquiry into the wages and cost of living in Ireland would soon settle that point.—Yours, etc.,

S. C. HARRISON, Hon. Secretary, Vacant Land Cultivation Society.

36 Upper Fitzwilliam street, Dublin, October 19th, 1916.

THE SAVING OF APPLES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Until I read the Irish Times of today I thought that we on the western seaboard were the principal sufferers through the gale of last Saturday having blown down the late apples. Unfortunately the damage seems to be widespread. It might be of some assistance to apple-growers whose crops have been decimated by the storm to know that these need not be all cleared at "windfall" prices.

Of course, the fruit which may have escaped without any bruise or other damage will keep all right, if stored in the ordinary way; but I have also repeatedly managed to save for some months apples that have been slightly bruised, and even those that have had the skin broken, if the wound is not too jagged or deep. My plan is to gather these as soon as possible into shallow receptacles, such as potato sprouting boxes, egg crates, fruit trays, or vegetable crates, placing these in as exposed a position as possible, and piled so that the air has full play, both underneath and through the boxes. It will be found that, instead of turning brown and starting to decay, the wounds will take a pink tint, and the bruised flesh underneath will become dry in about a week or ten days, depending on the weather. If then, on a dry day, the windfalls so treated are removed to the store, they will keep almost as long as the sound fruit. The only precaution to be taken is to cover the top crate or box of each pile if a frost such as we had early last November is feared. Rain will not do any harm.

By this treatment I saved some Bramley's Seedlings that were blown down during the last week of August, and disposed of them in sound and good condition in the middle of November.—Yours, etc.,

R. F BROWNE, Hon. Secretary, Sligo Fruit and Produce Association.

Ard Caein, Sligo, October 18th, 1916.

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

Live Stock Exports.—Matters in the way of live stock shipments from the North and South Walls yesterday were, so far as available steamers were concerned, much as on previous Thursdays for some time past, and cross-Channel purchasers in Dublin were stated to be acting cautiously as regarded the numbers of animals secured for export last night. On the previous day the extraordinary incident occurred of a full train-load of thirty or forty wagons of cattle being run from the Liffey to a North of Ireland port, where the big special consignment was shipped instead of through its natural exit—the North Wall. The keeping back of "shut out" shipments of stock has been very frequent in Dublin of late, and exporters are not well pleased at having to find food and lairages for the animals thus left on their hands.

Imports of Foodstuffs.—A brisk flow of seasonable foodstuffs is taking place on the import side of shipping business at the port at present. Both from cross-Channel and deep sea steamers cargoes of this nature are being received at the north and south sides of the Liffey. Cured meats, fruit of all kinds (with the Hallow Eve demand to meet), tinned fruits of many varieties, some of them of essentially American character, with "raw materials" in the way of flour, sugar, cocoa, coffee, and tea, are all found amongst the general cargoes carried into the Liffey by sea and ocean boats at present.

Charge of Illegal Possession.—At the City Commission yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gordon, Abraham Goldberg, marine store dealer, Moss street, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with the illegal possession in July last of three stone weight of lead, which had been stolen from Andrew Mather. Mr. Dudley White, K.C., and Mr. Cusack (instructed by the Chief Crown Solicitor) prosecuted, and Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Mr. Noyk) defended. The jury acquitted the accused, who was discharged.

Value of Land in County Dublin.—The farm known as Corballis, Santry, Co. Dublin, with a residence and out-offices, containing 83 acres 3 roods 18 perches, was put up for sale yesterday by Mr. John P. Cuffe, the well-known auctioneer, at the City Arms Hotel, Prussia street, and, after spirited bidding, was knocked down to Mr. Barry for £3,832 10s.; and a ground rent of £14 15s., issuing out of the same lands was knocked down to Mr. P. Murtagh for £315. Messrs. J. H. Walsh and Co. and Mr. Christopher Friery had carriage of the sale.

DUKE OF BEDFORD AND IRISH RECRUITING.

The following appears in The Times:—

SIR,—Lord Derby considers that it is not in the national interest at this moment to give figures of any deficiencies in Irish regiments or in any others. The Under Secretary of State for War may be right. But how can we understand the real state of Irish recruiting without such information? For instance, I know of many Bedfordshire men who eagerly enlisted during the great crisis of November, 1914, in order to help their friends and relations fighting in the county regiment in France, and sorely in need of their assistance. Some of these men have returned home wounded and invalided, and have since been drafted abroad for a second time, not, however, to serve once more alongside their friends in the Bedfordshire regiment, but to make good the deficiencies in Irish regiments. These men, and many other British soldiers transferred without their own consent to Irish units, serve three purposes—first, to lessen the deficiencies in those battalions; secondly, to conceal the real lack of Irish born men in Irish regiments; and finally, to obscure the true state of Irish regiments, which it is against the national interest to reveal by giving figures.—Yours, faithfully,

BEDFORD.

EXTRAVAGANT MAIDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—May I be permitted to say a few words in regard to the letter of "Economist" dealing with the extravagance of maids? Not only since the outbreak of the war, but as a general rule, in so-called gentlemen's houses the food provided for maids has been poor and insufficient, and often has to be supplemented out of the wages received. By the time when black dresses, prints, caps, aprons, shoes, stockings, have been paid for out of, say, sixteen pounds per annum, how much remains for stamps, notepaper, outdoor clothing, pocket-money, etc? Moreover, a great many girls in service send home part of their wages monthly, and a great many are sending parcels of food regularly to soldiers in France and prisoners in Germany. I should like to add that in the houses of many wealthy families the maids are doing the work of two girls for the same wages as before. The mistress, of course, boasts over afternoon tea of the sacrifice she has made in doing with fewer maids, but really it is only saving she is, and it is the poor that suffer. A few shillings which a poor girl spends out of her meagre wages to help others in need are of more value in God's sight than pounds from a wealthy person who never misses what she gives.—Yours, etc.,

"EX-BUTLER."

Captain F. R. Crozier.—Captain F. R. M. Crozier, Royal Irish Fusiliers, who, as already reported, was dangerously wounded last month, is now a patient in hospital at Malta. His life was for a time in danger, but he is now on the road to recovery. He was shot in the stomach and right side, and was paralysed in the left leg, while he afterwards contracted malaria. Writing to a friend in Belfast Captain Crozier says:—"I am not downhearted. My company did awfully well in the show in which I got hit, but, with my usual luck, I was hit too soon. I had a hard struggle for ten days, but Providence saw me through, and I hope it won't be long till I am with you all again." Captain Crozier, who is a County Down man, was a solicitor in Dublin, and deeply interested in the Ulster Volunteer movement. He was wounded in the landing at Suvla Bay in August, 1915. On recovery he was appointed military adviser to the Lord Mayor of Belfast in the recruiting campaign from October, 1915, to February, 1916, when he left to rejoin his battalion.

Captain J. A. Mulholland.—Captain J. A. Mulholland, Royal Irish Rifles (slightly wounded), is a son of Mr. J. H. Mulholland, Donaghadee, and one of three brothers holding commissions in the Army. He was formerly associated with the Young Citizen Volunteer movement, and had been adjutant of his battalion since 22nd August, 1915.

Lieutenant T. G. Rutherford.—Lieutenant T. G. Rutherford, Canadian Infantry, has died from wounds received in action. He was the second son of Rev. Thomas Rutherford, Seaview terrace, Holywood, Co. Down. Lieutenant Rutherford went to Canada seven years ago, and enlisted in Winnipeg at the outbreak of war. He received his commission on the field some time ago, for bravery, and for displaying good qualities of leadership.

Second Lieutenant F. P. Kiely.—Second Lieutenant F. P. Kiely, Royal Irish Fusiliers (wounded), received his commission in the Special Reserve of the Royal Irish Fusiliers in December, 1915, and served with his regiment at Victoria Barracks, Belfast, before going to the front in July last. He is a native of Kinsale, Co. Cork.

Second Lieutenant S. R. E. Jolley.—Second Lieutenant S. R. E. Jolley, Royal Fusiliers (wounded), is a son of Mr. Townsend Jolley, Valentia Island, and is the youngest of three brothers who are serving with the Colours. His brother, Second Lieutenant A. H. Jolley, Duke of Wellington's Regiment, attached to the Machine Gun Corps, was severely wounded in August, and is at present at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Netley; while his other brother, Lieutenant J. E. Jolley, is at present with the Salonika Force.

Second Lieutenant F. A. J. Davidson.—Second Lieutenant F. A. J. Davidson, Royal Irish Rifles, who was reported missing, is now reported to be a prisoner. He is the son of the late Dr. Davidson, Rademon House, Crossgar, County Down, and was in the Phillipine Islands when the war broke out. He came home, received his commission in January last, and was in the trenches some weeks.

Second Lieutenant E. N. M. Martin.—Second Lieutenant Edward Nugent Meredyth Martin, Lancers, the youngest son of the late Mr. Eustace Meredyth Martin, and grandson of the late Rev. Edward Martin, LL.D., has been killed in action. He was 34 years of age.

Second Lieutenant E. W. Wallace.—Second Lieutenant E. W. Wallace, Royal Irish Rifles, was reported wounded a few days ago, and a day or two later the War Office contradicted the intimation. As a matter of fact, Second Lieutenant Wallace was wounded by a shell, which exploded under the bed where he was lying, and at the moment he is in his residence, Osborne Park, suffering from shell shock and wounds.

Second Lieutenant B. Conlin.—Bernard Francis Conlin, Second Lieutenant R.F.A., whose name appeared in the casualty lists a few days ago, was one of the most promising mathematicians who have passed out of Trinity College, Dublin, in recent years. He was educated at the Christian Brothers' Schools, in Kilrush and Omagh, and at the Academy, Omagh. After a brilliant Intermediate course he entered Trinity College in 1911 as first Mathematical Sizar. He obtained a Mathematical Scholarship in his Senior Freshman year, and the Lloyd Mathematical Exhibition in 1914, and graduated as a Senior Moderator in Mathematics with a gold medal in 1915. After a six months' course in Woolwich Academy he was gazetted to the Royal Field Artillery in August, 1916, and went to France almost at once. A few weeks later he died from wounds received in action. Bernard Conlin had read widely and deeply outside his College course; he was a thinker of real originality and depth, and his gifts of character and intellect gave promise of a brilliant future. His death has deprived his University and country of one whose eager hunger for knowledge and capacity for research would have won for him a high place on the roll of distinguished Trinity men.

Second Lieutenant T. E. Barton.—Second Lieutenant T. E. Barton, Royal Irish Rifles, reported missing some weeks ago, is officially reported to have been killed in action. The third son of the late Mr. Charles W. Barton, J.P., Glendalough House, Annamoe, County Wicklow, he was gazetted to the Royal Irish Rifles in December last, and had been in the trenches several months before being reported missing last July.

Second Lieutenant R. F. Pepper.—Second Lieutenant R. F. Pepper, Royal Irish Fusiliers, wounded in action, is the son of Mr. R. F. Pepper, Portrush. He was commissioned in the Special Reserve of the "Faugh-a-Ballaghs" eight months ago.

Mr. P. A. Dever.—News was received in Newport, County Mayo, on Wednesday of the death from wounds received in action of Mr. P. A. Dever, the eldest son of Mr. Hugh Dever, merchant, Newport. He was educated at St. Jarlath's College, Tuam, and conducted his father's business in later years. At the outbreak of the war he was offered a commission, but refused it. He afterwards joined the Irish Guards when volunteers were wanted for that regiment, and went out to France, where he served until he was wounded. He died on the 14th October. He was an all-round sportsman. His only brother is at present serving with the Canadian Contingent.

MAGDALEN ASYLUM, GLOUCESTER STREET, DUBLIN.

A DESERVING APPEAL.

At no time were funds more urgently needed than at present in aid of the Magdalen Asylum, Gloucester street, Dublin. For years the Sisters of Charity have been working unremittingly to maintain the asylum in a state of efficiency. In recent years, however, particularly since the outbreak of the war, it has been found difficult to keep the funds of the institution up to the requirements necessitated by modern conditions. The laundry, which employs 120 women, has been much handicapped by the rise in the price of materials. The charitable public will doubtless continue to maintain its support of this excellent institution. The upkeep of the institution is dependent purely upon voluntary subscriptions, and, considering the fact that the institution does not receive a grant out of Government funds, it is hoped that the charitable public will generously respond to an appeal which is about to be made on its behalf. Situated in the heart of slum dwellings, the institution carries on excellent work, and it is unfortunate that many penitents, the Magdalens of the city, have occasionally to be refused admission through lack of funds. On Sunday next a sermon in aid of the institution will be preached in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Upper Gardiner street, after the 12 o'clock Mass, by the Rev. Patrick Power, S.J. In the evening a similar appeal will be made by the Rev. A. O'Quigley, O.P., in the Church of St. Saviour, Dominick street. Both appeals will doubtless meet with a generous response, and those who may not have an opportunity of responding to the appeal should communicate with the Rev. Mother, Gloucester street.

THE TULLAMORE DISTURBANCES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

TULLAMORE, WEDNESDAY.

The attack by a hostile crowd on the Tullamore Sinn Fein Hall on the 20th March last, when Police Sergeant Ahern was shot and seriously wounded, formed the subject of an inquiry at Tullamore Quarter Sessions to-day by His Honor County Court Judge Drummond, who heard a number of claims for compensation under the Malicious Damage Act arising out of the disturbance.

The first claim investigated was that of Mr. Thomas Chapman, Athlone, for £26, in respect of damage to the premises known as the King's County Independent Office. The other claims were by Malachy Scally for £20 in respect of a plate glass window injured by a bullet; and by the St. Columbcille's Pipers' Club, which claimed £57 for band instruments which were alleged to have been maliciously smashed on the occasion.

Mr. Gerald Farrell (instructed by Mr. James Rogers) appeared for the applicants, and Messrs. T. Conway, solicitor, and H. F. Brenan, LL.B. (Messrs. Hoey and Denning), opposed, the former for the County Council, and the latter for the Tullamore Urban and District Councils. Mr. Lewis Goodbody appeared for Mrs. Martin, the landlord of the premises of which Mr. Chapman is tenant.

Evidence having been given in all cases,

His Honor made an order for £19 10/- compensation to Mr. Chapman, and for £20 to Mr. Scally. In awarding £30 to the Pipers' Club, His Honor said it was extremely difficult to understand why the crowd should have gone up, wrecked, and plundered the contents of these young men's band-room. It would not be tolerated in any other town in Ireland. His Honor fixed the area of assessment as Tullamore Urban District.

SELLING DRINK TO WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

Before Mr. Swifte, K.C., at the Kingstown Police Court yesterday, Henry Hardy, a carpenter, who resides at the rear of 59 Patrick street, Kingstown, was charged, at the suit of Inspector Clifford, D.M.P., for selling intoxicating drink without having a licence therefor, and also with having supplied intoxicants to wounded soldiers and a wounded sailor in contravention of Regulation 40 (A) of the Defence of the Realm Regulations.

Mr. J. M. Robertson, of the Chief Crown Solicitor's office, prosecuted.

Sergeant Hamilton (17 F) deposed that while on duty with Constable 39 F on Sunday, October 8th, at about 4.30 p.m., he saw two soldiers in hospital uniform and a sailor in uniform, with his head bandaged, enter the defendant's house. Witness and the constable went in and found three soldiers in hospital uniform and the sailor sitting around a table, on which were three glasses, one containing the remains of porter. The sailor drank in their presence.

The defendant was sworn in connection with the first case, and stated he never sold any drink. Soldiers were in the habit of coming in to the house, as he had three sons in the Army, one of whom was at present at home, invalided. He was out having a glass of porter, and when he returned he found the soldiers in his room.

Mr. Swifte said, as the defendant seemed to be of good character, and was at a disadvantage in having no professional assistance, he would only impose a fine of £5 in each case.

Subsequently two of the wounded soldiers appeared in court, and their evidence was taken.

His Worship said their evidence did not help the defendant's case very much, and refused to alter his decision.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING PROTESTANT SCHOOLS.

A meeting of the Governors of the above Society was held yesterday in the Boardroom, 48 Kildare street, Dublin, the Primate, and subsequently the Bishop of Ossory, in the chair. Also present:—

The Bishop of Kilmore, the Earl of Belmore, Lord Castlemaine, H.M.L.; Sir Gabriel Stokes, K.C.S.I.; the Archdeacon of Clonfert, J. Andrew, Professor W. E. Thrift, F.T.C.D.; Rev. Canon R. B. Stoney, D.D.; the Dean of Christ Church, D.D.; J. Merrick Lloyd, D.L.; Rev. Chancellor H. Vere White, Thomas J. Hayes, John R. Garstin, D.L.; Rev. R. A. Kernan, Henry J. B. Clements, D.L.; A. Purser, Rev. Canon T. S. Lindsay, H. Shuldham Shaw, Francis B. Ormsby, J.P.; Colonel Charles Pepper, D.L.; Rev. Canon F. C. Hayes.

The following resolution, proposed by the Dean of Christ Church, D.D., seconded by Sir Gabriel Stokes, K.C.S.I., was unanimously adopted:—

That, in accepting, as they do, with great regret, the resignation of their Secretary, Rev. Robert Miller, M.A., the Governors of the Incorporated Society place on record their high appreciation of the zeal and diligence with which he discharged the duties of his office for more than eleven years. During the period he occupied the position of Secretary the educational work in which the Society was engaged has been uniformly progressive, the phenomenal success of the Celbridge Girls' School and the Kilkenny Boys' School being to a great extent the result of his wise and prudent forethought and organisation. In the general management of the Society's affairs Mr. Miller displayed distinguished ability, and invariably impressed those with whom he came in contact by his kindly manner and thoughtful tact. The Governors heartily congratulate him on the recognition of his services to the Church of Ireland, as shown by his unanimous election to the Incumbency of Holy Trinity and St. Olave's Parish, Waterford, and his nomination to the Deanery of Waterford. They pray that God may abundantly bless his work in the new sphere to which he has been called.

The Governors, having transacted business, adjourned.

MAGDALEN ASYLUM, GLOUCESTER STREET, DUBLIN.

A DESERVING APPEAL.

At no time were funds more urgently needed than at present in aid of the Magdalen Asylum, Gloucester street, Dublin. For years the Sisters of Charity have been working unremittingly to maintain the asylum in a state of efficiency. In recent years, however, particularly since the outbreak of the war, it has been found difficult to keep the funds of the institution up to the requirements necessitated by modern conditions. The laundry, which employs 120 women, has been much handicapped by the rise in the price of materials. The charitable public will doubtless continue to maintain its support of this excellent institution. The upkeep of the institution is dependent purely upon voluntary subscriptions, and, considering the fact that the institution does not receive a grant out of Government funds, it is hoped that the charitable public will generously respond to an appeal which is about to be made on its behalf. Situated in the heart of slum dwellings, the institution carries on excellent work, and it is unfortunate that many penitents, the Magdalens of the city, have occasionally to be refused admission through lack of funds. On Sunday next a sermon in aid of the institution will be preached in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Upper Gardiner street, after the 12 o'clock Mass, by the Rev. Patrick Power, S.J. In the evening a similar appeal will be made by the Rev. A. O'Quigley, O.P., in the Church of St. Saviour, Dominick street. Both appeals will doubtless meet with a generous response, and those who may not have an opportunity of responding to the appeal should communicate with the Rev. Mother, Gloucester street.

THE TULLAMORE DISTURBANCES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

TULLAMORE, Wednesday.

The attack by a hostile crowd on the Tullamore Sinn Fein Hall on the 20th March last, when Police Sergeant Ahern was shot and seriously wounded, formed the subject of an inquiry at Tullamore Quarter Sessions to-day by His Honor County Court Judge Drummond, who heard a number of claims for compensation under the Malicious Damage Act arising out of the disturbance.

The first claim investigated was that of Mr. Thomas Chapman, Athlone, for £30, in respect of damage to the premises known as the King's County Independent Office. The other claims were by Malachy Scully for £20 in respect of a plate glass window injured by a bullet; and by the St. Columbcille's Pipers' Club, who claimed £37 for band instruments which were alleged to have been maliciously smashed on the occasion.

Mr. Gerald Farrell (instructed by Mr. James Rogers) appeared for the applicants; and Messrs. T. Conway, solicitor, and H. F. Brenan, LL.B. (Messrs. Hoey and Denning), opposed, the former for the County Council, and the latter for the Tullamore Urban and District Councils. Mr. Lewis Goodbody appeared for Mrs. Martin, the landlord of the premises of which Mr. Chapman is tenant.

Evidence having been given in all cases,

His Honor made an order for £19 10/- compensation to Mr. Chapman, and for £20 to Mr. Scully. In awarding £30 to the Pipers' Club, His Honor said it was extremely difficult to understand why the crowd should have gone up, wrecked, and plundered the contents of these young men's band-room. It would not be tolerated in any other town in Ireland. His Honor fixed the area of assessment as Tullamore Urban District.

SELLING DRINK TO WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

Before Mr. Swifte, K.C., at the Kingstown Police Court yesterday, Henry Hardy, a carpenter, who resides at the rear of 59 Patrick street, Kingstown, was charged, at the suit of Inspector Clifford, D.M.P., for selling intoxicating drink without having a licence therefor, and also with having supplied intoxicants to wounded soldiers and a wounded sailor in contravention of Regulation 40 (A) of the Defence of the Realm Regulations.

Mr. J. M. Robertson, of the Chief Crown Solicitor' office, prosecuted.

Sergeant Hamilton (17 F) deposed that while on duty with Constable 39 F on Sunday, October 8th, at about 4.30 p.m., he saw two soldiers in hospital uniform and a sailor in uniform, with his head bandaged, enter the defendant's house. Witness and the constable went in and found three soldiers in hospital uniform and the sailor sitting around a table, on which were three glasses, one containing the remains of porter. The sailor drank in their presence.

The defendant was sworn in connection with the first case, and stated he never sold any drink. Soldiers were in the habit of coming in to the house, as he had three sons in the Army, one of whom was at present at home, invalided. He was out having a glass of porter, and when he returned he found the soldiers in his room.

Mr. Swifte said, as the defendant seemed to be of good character, and was at a disadvantage in having no professional assistance, he would only impose a fine of £5 in each case.

Subsequently two of the wounded soldiers appeared in court, and their evidence was taken.

His Worship said their evidence did not help the defendant's case very much, and refused to alter his decision.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING PROTESTANT SCHOOLS.

A meeting of the Governors of the above Society was held yesterday in the Boardroom, 48 Kildare street, Dublin, the Primate, and subsequently the Bishop of Ossory, in the chair.

Also present:—

The Bishop of Kilmore, the Earl of Belmore, Lord Castlemaine, H.M.L.; Sir Gabriel Stokes, K.C.S.I.; the Archdeacon of Clonfert, J. Andrew, Professor W. E. Thrift, F.T.C.D.; Rev. Canon R. B. Stoney, D.D.; the Dean of Christ Church, D.D.; J. Merrick Lloyd, D.L.; Rev. Chancellor H. Vere White, Thomas J. Hayes, John R. Garstin, D.L.; Rev. R. A. Kernan, Henry J. B. Clements, D.L.; A. Purser, Rev. Canon T. S. Lindsay, H. Shuldham Shaw, Francis B. Ormsby, J.P.; Colonel Charles Pepper, D.L., Rev. Canon F. C. Hayes.

The following resolution, proposed by the Dean of Christ Church, D.D., seconded by Sir Gabriel Stokes, K.C.S.I., was unanimously adopted:—

That, in accepting, as they do, with great regret, the resignation of their Secretary, Rev. Robert Miller, M.A., the Governors of the Incorporated Society place on record their high appreciation of the zeal and diligence with which he discharged the duties of his office for more than eleven years. During the period he occupied the position of Secretary the educational work in which the Society was engaged has been uniformly progressive, the phenomenal success of the Celbridge Girls' School and the Kilkenny Boys' School being to a great extent the result of his wise and prudent forethought and organisation. In the general management of the Society's affairs Mr. Miller displayed distinguished ability, and invariably impressed those with whom he came in contact by his kindly manner and thoughtful tact. The Governors heartily congratulate him on the recognition of his services to the Church of Ireland, as shown by his unanimous election to the Incumbency of Holy Trinity and St. Olave's Parish, Waterford, and his nomination to the Deanery of Waterford. They pray that God may abundantly bless his work in the new sphere to which he has been called.

The Governors, having transacted business, adjourned.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed July 13th, 1916) ...... 6 p.c.

Conditions in the Loan Market were again distinctly tight, but the authorities, who are evidently controlling the situation, don't apply the screw sufficiently to force the market to become a borrower at the central institution. In Lombard street call money in the morning was quoted at 5 per cent., and even higher, but later there was a reaction to 4½ per cent. Weekly loans remained at 5 per cent. Discount rates were unchanged, without much paper on offer. November Treasury Bills changed hands in the open market at 5½ per cent., and December bills at 5½ per cent. French January bills were done at 5⅞. The New York exchange was quoted at 4.76 7/16.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS BETTER.

DISTINCTLY CHEERFUL. RECOVERY IN CONSOLS.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Thursday.

The Stock Exchange opened with a hesitating appearance, but the tone improved as the session progressed, and, while net changes were irregular, the final aspect of markets was distinctly cheerful. The war news was the principal factor of firmness, uneasiness regarding the situation in Rumania having been largely allayed, and the further improvement recorded by the Bank return assisted sentiment in the gilt-edged group. In this part of the House prices rallied moderately in many directions, even Consols recording a fair recovery after yesterday's set-back to the lowest figure touched for a century. The quotation added ⅛ on balance at 56⅛. The 4½ p.c. War Loan moved up ⅛ to 95⅝, and the 3½ p.c. War Loan, closing under best at 85⅛, was ⅛ to the good. The Colonial group, on the whole, was inclined to firmness.

FOREIGN BONDS QUIET.

The Foreign market lacked briskness, and the tone was hesitating. The Paris Bourse has taken a distinct turn for the better during the last few days, the effect of the new French War Loan flotation having worn off, but the cheerfulness of Paris has not yet communicated itself to the local Foreign market, though the war news was responsible for a better undertone. The French Loan held at 80⅝. The only transaction among Greek descriptions was a special deal in the 4 p.c. Railways Loan at 60. Japanese Bonds were slightly brisker. Peruvian Debs. flattened 1¼ to 77 among South Americans. Brazilian Bonds were heavy, the unfavourable exchange being an adverse factor, but prices mended before the close. Some Argentine quotations marked fresh falls of ½ to 1.

HOME RAILS SLIGHTLY BETTER.

Home Rails, despite a firm finish, did not wipe out an earlier set-back altogether, and net changes were mixed, with falls predominating. There were one or two fresh falls of ½ among Trunk and Trade Stocks. Passenger Stocks closed steadily. Scotch Stocks were steady.

CANADIANS AND MEXICANS QUIET.

Canadian Pacifics were steady, without change, at 183½, but Grand Trunk Junior Stocks marked some fresh falls of ½, and the Guaranteed Fours at 61 were ½ down.

Mexican Rails were idle and featureless. There were a few fresh declines of ¼ to ½ in the Argentine Railway group. Central Argentines lost the latter fraction at 78. San Paulos rose 1 to 188 in the Brazilian group.

INDUSTRIAL SHARES QUIET.

In the Miscellaneous and Industrial market Guardian Insurance was higher at 10 on the amalgamation news, though no dealings were recorded. Prince Line, in the Shipping group, further rose to 93/9. Marconis advanced 1/16 to 2 1/16, but the Pref. lost that fraction. One or two Bank Shares weakened ⅛ to ¼. Among Brewery descriptions, Allsopps Ord. further fell a point to 5, and the Pref., at 11, was 2 weaker. There was some realising of South Wales Colliery Shares, which were inclined to droop. There was a further advance of a point to 59 in Brazilian Tractions, but Mexican Light and Power Bonds fell 1 to 40, and Mexico Trans Bonds gave way 2 to 41. Land Shares were dullish. Hudson's Bays closed unchanged, after being lower, but Forestals yielded 1/16 to 2⅛. Armaments were dull. South Durham Steels eased 6d. to 35/6. Supply descriptions were idle. Courtaulds were an active market, among Textiles, at 6¼ to under. Coats Ord. was dealt in down to 5⅞. English Sewing Cotton kept around 43/-.

LONDON MINING MARKET STEADY.

The Mining market generally was quiet, with a few cheerful features. Kaffirs were steady to dull. Finance Shares met less attention, but some Far Eastern Shares were bought, Modder Leases being specially active. Rhodesians were on the dull side, Chartereds again showing a sagging disposition. In the Diamond group trading was light, and about equally divided between purchases and sales. In the Westralian market conditions were narrowly irregular. Russians were inclined to mend. Base metal shares possessed a good undertone. The price of copper was unaltered, but the price of tin advanced 17/6 per ton.

RUBBER SHARES SLOW.

The price of Plantation rubber was slightly down on the week at 2/5 per lb. The principal feature since last Thursday has been the set-back in the market caused by the excess profits tax proposals of the Dutch Government. Naturally the quotations which suffered most were those of Java and Sumatra concerns, but the rest of the market was affected sympathetically. However, "bargain hunters" soon appeared at the lower levels, and during the last two days there has been a considerable recovery in many shares. The net result of the new taxes, if carried through, will certainly not be sufficient to justify the throwing away of good Rubber Shares in the Dutch Indies, while F.M.S., Ceylon, and Borneo concerns will, of course, be entirely unaffected. Yesterday Alor Pongsu were active around 58/9 and 59/- bid. Anglo-Java, after dipping to 5/3, recovered to 5/7½. Bandar Sumatra were in good demand around 44/6, and Bekoh kept firm at 3/11. Brieh changed freely around 30/-. Dennistown offered at 39/9. Highlands down at 53/9. Java Amalgamated lower at 35/3, and Java Rubber and Produce at 38/-. Johore Lands were easier at 31/6, and Kawi showed a drop at 61/3, but Kurunigalla were higher at 22/3. Merbau firm at 3/1, and Pilmoor steadily bought around 50/6. Rubber Trust, after various fluctuations, now 26/-. Sedenak lower at 38/1½, but Selaba were firm at 47/3. Sungei Bahru showed business at 42/6, but Sungei Choh offered at 72/6 x.d. United Sua Betong firm on the interim dividend of 2/- at 60/- c.d. In the Borneo section, Bangawan Non-Guaranteed Shares, after dipping to 9/6, recovered to 12/- bid. Langkon still 17/6 c.d., and Membakut wanted at 20/6, while Manchester North Borneo kept in good demand at 30/6. Sabias dropped to 18/9, but buyers quickly appeared, and the price recovered to 19/3 bid. Sapone taken around 30/- and Sekong at 26/-.

MICHAELMAS LAW SITTINGS.

The Long Vacation, which commenced on August 1st, is rapidly drawing to a close, and the Michaelmas term of the High Court of Justice in Ireland will begin on Thursday next, the 26th inst. Up to the present no case of outstanding interest has been entered for hearing, but the volume of business at the Four Courts for the next two months will be about the average. In the Court of Appeal forty-one cases are down for hearing. Among these is one in which the Postmaster-General appeals from a judgment of the Railway and Canal Commission dismissing his application for a declaration that all salaried officials and workmen employed by the Post Office and engaged in the repair, construction, and maintenance of telegraph lines on the system of the Belfast and County Down Railway Company are entitled to be conveyed free of expense on the company's railway. The case of Cox, against the Dublin City Distillery Company, on appeal from a judgment of Mr. Justice Barton, will engage the attention of the Court.

There are fifteen special jury and nine common jury cases in the list at Nisi Prius. Among the former is a matrimonial case, in which the wife of a Dublin professional man seeks a divorce, a mensa et thoro, from her husband. There is an action against a city landlord by his tenant for alleged illegal seizure; and an action by a Dublin financier against the Dublin United Tramways Company to recover damages for alleged personal injuries. The Corporation of Dublin are plaintiffs in an action against the Fidelity and Deposit Company, of Maryland, U.S., brought to recover £35,000 on foot of certain bonds entered into for the performance of certain engineering contracts, the liability for which the defendants deny. Among the cases which are down for hearing in the King's Bench Divisional Court is that of Newell v. Starkie. The plaintiff, an ex-Inspector of National Schools, is applying to have the verdict and judgment entered for the defendant (the Resident Commissioner of National Education) set aside, or in the alternative that he be granted permission to have a new trial of the action. In the Rolls Court, and in that of Mr. Justice Barton, the lists present no case of conspicuous public interest.

The Board of Trade have awarded a piece of plate to Captain Jens Christensen, master of the Danish steamship Daisy, of Copenhagen, in recognition of his services to the shipwrecked crews of the steamships Trident and Newburn, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, whom he rescued in the Mediterranean Sea on the 7th August.

KILDARE SYNOD.

DEPOPULATION OF RURAL DISTRICTS.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

UNITY IN IRELAND.

The annual Synod of the Diocese of Kildare was held yesterday in the Synod Hall, Christchurch place, Dublin. The Archbishop of Dublin (Bishop of the Diocese) presided.

The Synod was opened with the reading of Scripture and prayers by the Archdeacon.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, in his annual address, said that since their last meeting two lay members of their Synod, both from country parishes, had passed away—Colonel Kinloch, of Clonaslee, and Mr. Gibson, of Clonsast. They regretted their loss, and they trusted that other faithful men would be raised up to take their places among the workers for the Church. They were fortunate in that the ranks of their Kildare clergy had remained unbroken during the past year. That was a small diocese and a peaceful diocese; and there was little which called for special comment in the report that would be laid before them. He should be very brief. He noticed two things, one a matter for thankfulness, and the other for regret. He took the latter first. The figures given of the average attendances at Divine Service, and also in their schools, both Sunday schools and day schools, were, he was afraid, the reflection and the consequence of the dwindling of the population in country districts. The rural deanery returns pointed in the same direction. Their churchpeople were not indeed diminishing more rapidly in proportion to their numbers than were the members of other religious bodies. But it was a more serious thing to lose ten from a congregation of 100 than to lose 100 from a congregation of 1,000, although the percentage of loss was the same in both cases. Minorities always were the first to feel a general drop in the population of a country. It was useless to lament this and unprofitable to trouble themselves about the historical causes of the depopulation of rural Ireland. It was a melancholy fact, and they must adjust their methods of Church organisation to facts as they found them. There were not many more districts in the Diocese of Kildare where neighbouring parishes could be amalgamated, although there were some. Their parishes were wide in extent, and there was a limit to the size of a district which could profitably be put under the spiritual charge of one man, because there was a limit to his powers of locomotion. The policy of amalgamation might do a little more for them, but there were not more than two or three additional instances in which it could be adopted at present with advantage in the Diocese of Kildare. He preferred to look to the policy of encouraging young Irish farmers who were members of the Church of Ireland to remain in the country and work their own small holdings rather than go to America, which did not always prove a land of prosperity for the immigrant. His Grace went on to say that some of the farmers, who formed so large a part of the Church population, were steady and liberal supporters of the Church of their fathers, and of the good works which were carried on through the Church's organisation. But there were some districts where he was afraid that the farmers had not yet recognised the responsibility that rested upon them for the maintenance of the ministrations of religion in their parish. The old tradition of the Establishment, where the Church received the endowments of past generations, still affected the minds of some who did not yet understand that their Church must be supported, so far as money was concerned, by the free-will offerings of her sons. The ownership of land had passed from the gentry to the farmers in a large number of instances, but he was not sure that the new owners had taken upon themselves all the responsibility that ownership involved. In particular, if the services of curates assistant are to be retained for outlying churches the farmers for whose benefit these smaller churches were kept up must be prepared to contribute to the Church funds with a much more generous hand than had been their habit. There were no diocesan funds from which the stipends of assistant curates could be increased, and unless they were increased curates would no longer be forthcoming. But he said that the report presented some matters for which they should be thankful, and he should end by mentioning these. The finance of the diocese on the whole was very good. It depended largely—too largely, as he had already hinted—on the generosity of a few and on the splendid steadfastness with which their gentry, many of whom were much poorer than they used to be, and all of them more heavily taxed, supported the old Church. But the results were gratifying on the whole, and he hoped that a real effort would be made in the near future to clear off arrears of assessment, about which he might say a good deal were not silence better than speech in some cases. The Archbishop, in conclusion, repeated the suggestion which he made to the Glendalough Synod on Tuesday—that it would be in the interests of the two Dioceses of Glendalough and Kildare to amalgamate so far as their Synod meetings were concerned. (Applause.)

DIOCESAN REPORT.

The Dean, in moving the adoption of the report of the Diocesan Council, said they had to thank God that the Sustentation Fund was higher than for the past five years.

Mr. J. W. Dane seconded the resolution, remarking that the finances were in a very satisfactory state. There had been an increase in all items. The total for 1915 amounted to £5,556 8s. 10d., or £326 13s. 11d. more than the previous year. There were four parishes in arrear of assessment, and he hoped the current year would see a change in that respect. Only two parishes had failed to subscribe to the Poor Parishes Fund. Every parish ought, he thought, to have a collection at least once a year and send forward a substantial sum towards the fund. There was no parish, poor or otherwise, that could not contribute to it. He added that he entirely agreed it would be to the advantage of that Synod and to the Synod of Glendalough that they should be amalgamated. (Hear, hear.)

The report was adopted.

NEW COUNCIL.

The following were re-elected on the Diocesan Council:—

Clerical—Ven. Archdeacon Adams, Very Rev. E. H. Waller, Rev. Chancellor Graham, Rev. Canon Follis, Rev. Canon Somerville-Large, Rev. Canon Cole. Supplemental—Rev. Canon Clover, B.D.; Very Rev. G. Y. Cowell, Rev. Prebendary G. W. Peacocke.

Lay—Lieut.-Col. R. St. Leger Moore, C.B.; Judge Wakely, K.C., D.L.; Major H. A. Henry, J. W. Dane, D.L.; T. P. Trench, Lieut.-Col. W. J. de Burgh, D.L., H. Hendrick-Aylmer, C. C. Palmer, D.L.; E. J. O'B. Croker, Major Aylmer, Capt. H. de C. Wheeler, Col. Skeffington Smyth. Supplemental—G. L. Penrhyn, T. Hetherington, Capt. Dunne, A. Odlum.

TEMPERANCE.

The report of the Diocesan Temperance Association having been received,

Rev. G. F. Graham proposed, Rev Canon Somerville-Large seconded, and it was unanimously resolved:—

That this Synod hereby appeals to His Majesty's Government to extend immediately the operations of the Central Control Board (Liquor Traffic) to Ireland, and that all places where munitions of war are manufactured, and where troops are concentrated, and all ports of embarkation for soldiers should be declared "Scheduled Areas" under the Act; and that copies of this resolution be sent to the Prime Minister, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Home Secretary, the Secretary for War, the Minister of Munitions, and the Chief Secretary for Ireland.

Rev. Mr. Graham next proposed a resolution asking the Government, as soon as practicable, to introduce a measure in Parliament to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks in the United Kingdom during the war and for a period of at least six months after the conclusion of peace. He said they would be doing an enormous advantage to the Empire by passing such a resolution, and would increase the efficiency of all classes of the community. He hoped they would give a lead to the other dioceses on the question.

Rev. Canon Somerville-Large seconded the resolution, although he was not altogether in harmony with the wording of the resolution.

The Earl of Mayo, as a teetotaller, opposed the resolution on many grounds, one of these being that the prohibition of manufacture would upset economically a great part of the trade of the country. He did not think there was the smallest chance of Parliament passing a prohibition measure.

Rev. Dudley Fletcher, also speaking as a teetotaller, thought it would be better not to pass the resolution, at least in its present form. It was too serious a matter for a small body of clergymen and laymen to decide upon.

Rev. G. J. Wilson, another total abstainer, asked if they had a right to interfere with the trade of their neighbours on this question. That trade had been allowed by the Government and by the people generally to grow up, and why should they ask the Government to suppress a thing just because they themselves were not in favour of it?

The Dean, also a strong total abstainer, said it seemed to him it would be wrong to pass a resolution of this description. While he was opposed on various grounds to prohibition of the manufacture of strong drinks, he thought, as individuals, they should do their best to bring about an improvement in the habits of the people in this respect.

Mr. J. W. Dane said he was perhaps the only non-teetotaller present—(laughter)—and he rose to oppose the motion in the strongest manner he could. It would, in his opinion, be a preposterous thing if the Synod should pass such a resolution as this. (Hear, hear.)

Rev. Canon Cole, in supporting the resolution, said 160,000 people died every year from the evil effects of strong drink.

Colonel St. Leger Moore said if they passed such a resolution they would be doing not only a wrong thing but a very hurtful thing to their own Church. He knew at least three instances in which prohibition would mean ruin to certain laymen who were large subscribers to the Church funds. He had just come back from Switzerland, where he had been daily in contact with 600 or 700 of their prisoners who had been sent back from Germany. Those men had been deprived while in captivity of a great deal of food, and had practically lived on what had been sent out to them from the United Kingdom. When they arrived in Switzerland they were all suffering from anaemia and weakness of every description, and the doctor in charge had told him that the agent he chiefly relied upon to get those men back to their normal health and strength was the stout that was made in Ireland by Guinness.

Rev. Canon Clover suggested that Mr. Graham should withdraw his resolution, which, he thought, had been too hastily framed.

Mr. Graham declined to withdraw the resolution, which was put to a vote and defeated, 9 voting for and 16 against.

BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Mr. H. Hendrick-Aylmer moved the adoption of the report of the Board of Missions, and said the sum subscribed this year for foreign missions was the largest since the Board was established. It was a very satisfactory state of affairs, and showed that the Diocese of Kildare was alive.

The Dean of Kildare seconded the motion, and the report was adopted.

UNITY IN IRELAND.

The Rev. W. D. S. Fletcher, B.D., moved the following resolution:—

That this Synod, recognising that one of the chief duties of the Church is to promote peace and good will among men, and observing with regret a growing tendency at the present time, in Ireland, towards dissension among Irishmen, and, in the United Kingdom, towards estrangement between Great Britain and Ireland, urges all members of our Church to use their several influence to promote a better understanding and mutual sympathy among all classes, in accordance with the principles of Christian charity, as explained by St. Paul.

He said that since he drew up the resolution he had read the address of the Bishop of Killaloe at the Synod of Clonfert, and he associated himself with the Christian and patriotic sentiments of his lordship. When war broke out there was the brightest hope for Ireland and for the United Kingdom, for the war provided that community of interest which welded people together into a united nation, and in their own country the two great parties who had been too long separated seized each other's hands, so to speak, and there was the greatest unanimity of opinion everywhere in regard to this great question. The Prime Minister had described Ireland as the one bright spot in the gloomy horizon which surrounded the Empire. Alas! these bright prospects were not fulfilled, and now there was the danger that when the horizon was brightening for England and her Allies Ireland might be the one dark spot. (Hear, hear.) It was a serious thing to think that at the present moment an Irishman travelling amongst the Allies would have to apologise for being an Irishman. Yet he believed most firmly that all Irishmen were desirous that Ireland should be united, and that they should be on a better footing with the greater sister. They, as Churchmen, yielded to no one in love and devotion to their country, and it was on this ground that they could touch the hearts of those who were unfortunately separated from them on questions of religion and politics. He knew that the hearts of the great majority of their fellow-countrymen would at once go out in the warmest love and friendship to everyone who loved Ireland. They were not alone devoted to their own country, but loyal to their King and great Empire. He believed it was on these two grounds—love of Ireland and loyalty to the Empire—that they could hope to unite all classes in Ireland, and to unite Ireland to Great Britain.

Rev. G. J. Wilson, in seconding the resolution, said their duty as members of the Church of Ireland was not to associate themselves with particular parties, but to take their stand on Christian principles. The Church of Ireland was in Ireland not as the Church of any particular body or any particular organisation. The clergy were there as ministers of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Church of Christ knew no King or Empire other than of Christ.

The resolution was unanimously passed.

AMALGAMATION.

Rev. Chancellor Graham moved that the Kildare Diocesan Council be asked to consider and, if practical, to introduce a bill for the amalgamation of the Synods of Glendalough and Kildare on the lines suggested in the Archbishop's address.

The Dean seconded the motion, which was passed.

The proceedings concluded.

"That in the opinion of these Joint Synods of Dublin, Glendalough, and Kildare, it is desirable that the monthly payment of salaries in national schools should be made direct to the teachers and not through the managers; and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and to the Commissioners of National Education."

RELIGION IN SPAIN.

SPANIARDS AND THE ALLIES.

The annual meeting of the Irish Branch of the Spanish and Portuguese Church Aid Society took place yesterday afternoon in the Gregg Memorial Hall, Dublin. The Bishop of Clogher occupied the chair.

The Rev. J. C. Irwin, B.D., Hon. Secretary, submitted the report for 1915-16 of the Irish Branch, published in the October number of Light and Truth. The report dealt at length with the death of Bishop Cabrera. It recorded that the contributions from Ireland during the past year had fallen off to the amount of £60. There had not been a decrease in the number of contributors, but some of the Society's most generous friends had not been able to maintain their gifts.

The Bishop of Tuam, as Hon. Treasurer, presented the financial statement. It appeared that the Society was at last within distance of applying the Episcopal Endowment Fund to the stipends of the Presidents of the two Synods.

The Chairman, in his address, spoke of the almost disastrous loss to the Reformed Church in Spain in the removal by death of their Father in God, Bishop Cabrera. The work in Spain was largely due to the energy, the earnest spirituality of that great Bishop, who had been consecrated by three Irish Bishops—namely, the former Archbishop of Dublin, that great patriot, Lord Plunket; the former Bishop of Down; and his predecessor in the See that he was himself privileged to hold, Bishop Stack. The choice of a President of the Reformed Church in Spain had fallen upon the son of the late Bishop Cabrera, Don Fernando Cabrera.

THE CHURCH IN SPAIN.

The Rev. Thomas Pulvertaft, M.A., Secretary of the Church Aid Society, proposed that the report and cash statement should be adopted, and the Committee and officers re-elected. He said that the writer of a recent spiritual biography was profoundly impressed by the spiritual side of the Roman Catholic Church in Spain. The writer had seen much to record with respectful enthusiasm. But there was nobody who had gone from Ireland, whether he were an honest Roman Catholic or an Irish Churchman, and had seen the present condition of Spain, who was not filled with regret. There was such an increase of superstition, a certain frankness of miracle-mongering, that one might say that the manhood of the Spanish nation had turned their back on religion. If there was one thing which could save the Spanish people from that superstition, it was the circulation of the Word of God. There was now in one Spanish seminary a chair founded for the study of the exegetics of that Word. A few years previously there had been only a single chair for the study of the Holy Scriptures. During the previous fifteen years there had come to the minds of the ecclesiastical leaders of the Roman Catholic Church in Spain that they must do something to set the people face to face with the teaching of God's Word, and, to the astonishment of many, a great number of parish magazines, as well as other periodicals, were now publishing the Gospel and the Epistle for the day in the Spanish language. There had also been set on foot a great movement for publishing to the Spanish people a version of the Bible in Spanish, which had been revised in accordance with the latest renderings of the Vulgate. Mr. Pulvertaft proceeded to speak on the Spaniards' attitude towards the war. He had found in October, 1915, that there was a widespread notion through Spain that the German Emperor had promised that, when he had won the war, he would have Gibraltar offered to the Spaniards. It had become an obsession of the leaders of the Spanish Church that despotism would then be restored to the Church in Spain, that the temporal power would be restored, and that this would be done entirely by the German Emperor. The ecclesiastical party wrote in the German Press for the purpose of supporting the German Emperor, in the hope that ecclesiastical supremacy in the State might be restored. On the other hand, it was found among editors of papers, among the working classes, the intellectual classes, University students, and others, that there was a great body of opinion on the side of the Allies. They maintained that these forces of Western Europe, which were making for liberty and justice, were precisely those forces that had showed themselves in the past to be in favour of high idealism, and not of selfish acquisition and the triumph of militarism. It might safely be said that to-day in Spain two-thirds of its people were in sympathy with the Allies; and that meant, to a large extent, in sympathy with England. More than any other neutral Power, Spain recognised that it was the sea power of England that had made the positions of the Allies so sure on the Continent of Europe. Spain had suffered defeat at our hands at the time of the Armada, and since that time Spain was dreaming of conquests on the seas, dreaming of having a great Armada to protect her commerce and her Colonies. In the mind of Spain, England and English institutions, the English view of life, the English hold on God, as expressed by adhesion to the reformation movement, were a point of view that would increasingly appeal to large sections of the Spanish people.

THE PRIMATE.

The Primate said that there were two reasons why such meetings as the present should be held. They were to supply information and to give inspiration. Mr. Pulvertaft had given information; he wished that he could himself give the inspiration. General Booth, in a message to the Salvation Army, had used simply the word "others." The extension of Christ's fold was the best means of its preservation, and the more they did for others, the more they did to strengthen their work at home. A laurel leaf had now to be laid upon the grave of Bishop Cabrera. Bishop Cabrera had lived to see some who had been his bitterest opponents turned, if not into his friends, at least into those who admired his character and his work. He had turned the cold water of persecution into the steam of enthusiasm. The Society's work was now largely becoming, not the work of supporting, but the work of helping the Spanish Reformers to push out into the deep. Dr. Crozier said a little on the position of Spain and Portugal with regard to the war. Portugal had done what all had expected her to do; she had come to the help of her Allies, and, therefore, to the help of the Lord against the mighty. In Spain, we were assured, the whole reformed Church was heart and soul with the Allies; and it could not be otherwise, because both by speech and pen, Bishop Cabrera had done his best to infuse the people with admiration for the work that the Allies were doing, and with horror as to the result for civilised humanity should German frightfulness win the day. And, therefore, His Grace should like to see that their work as patriotic citizens of the great British Empire, nay, more, as Irish patriots—that their work in connection with this reformation movement had forged the chain between them and those reformers, both in Spain and in Portugal; and that it would bring to the reformers what had brought joy and peace into their own hearts—the knowledge of the love of God in Jesus Christ, and the fulness of knowledge of peace and joy in the Holy Spirit that that Word of God had given to their own selves—their strength in life, and their hope in death. (Applause.)

The Rev. Canon Lindsay recalled his impressions of Spain in 1910. They were that the Roman Church, the territorial Church, had practically failed in the country; that the reformers were men of true convictions; and that they sorely needed help, advice, and encouragement, as there was the danger lest they should go off the lines.

The Society's report was adopted, and the committee and officers were re-elected unanimously.
